Congress Prepares To Reject Labor Draft

PROPOSALS OF EXECUTIVE FALL ON DEAF EARS

Five Of Six Requests Fail To Make Impression On Capitol Hill

FOURTH TERM FORECAST

Price Stabilization Bill Only Recommendation Gaining Favor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Roosevelt's third wartime message found congress today viewing him as a fourth term candidate and preparing to reject his "draft labor" as well as four more of his six legislative recommendations for the home front.

Two prominent members publicly accused the President of launching his fourth term candidacy with the report to congress, while many others did so privately. Most members interpreted the President's frequent references to future peace negotiations and post-war domestic plans as indicating he is not yet ready to lay down the burdens of the presidency.

The President's legislative recommendations fell on almost deaf ears, so far as they will influence the course of impending law-making.

Appeals To People

As though anticipating opposition in congress, the President took his legislative program direct to the people in a nation-wide broadcast. He hit all the highlights, including a stirring appeal for a national service law. Here is the legislative situation at the moment:

1. Tax bill: the senate is in the midst of enacting the house-passed tax bill, which the President said "does not begin to meet the test."
2. Renegotiation of war contracts: the senate has drafted a drastic liberalization of the present two-year-old law, after reviving a house bill that carried some reforms. There was widespread resentment over the inference drawn from the President's declaration that "for two long years I have pleaded with the congress to take undue profits out of war," when the law has been on the statute books for "two long years."

Subsidies Opposed

3. Food subsidies: the senate is standing pat on a house enacted bill, prohibiting food subsidies. It looks like the President will be given the opportunity to veto this bill, after which congress may compromise with him.

4. Price stabilization bill: no controversy. The President's recommendation will be followed but not without some liberalization of the price law.

5. National service law: no law, unless there should be an extraordinary wave of strikes. The President made this recommendation apparently on the advice of his military advisers, because his

Subsidies Facing New Opposition

Barkley Seeks Conference With Roosevelt On Compromise Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—New defiance of the White House food subsidy program was shown today as Majority Leader Barkley sought to confer with President Roosevelt and his advisers on a compromise plan.

Three major farm bloc spokesmen challenged administration forces to show where the President's annual message contained "cost of living proposals" any different from those of the past.

"So far as I am concerned, the fight against subsidies will go on," said Sen. Bushfield (R) S. D.

Bushfield is one of the nine first termers who have stuck together so closely against New Deal measures that both the farm bloc and the Republican minority have held new power for a year.

"I am determined to fight subsidies more than ever," said Sen. Wherry (R) Neb., another first term.

"The President speaks of a stabilization program and of wages and the need for legislation."

"But there is not one jot or tittle in the proposals to guarantee that the farmer will be treated in a manner any different from the past."

Wherry cited corn and beef prices in support of his contention that administration price and farm programs have failed.

"Prime double A beef sold on the Chicago market at $16.50 a hundredweight before September of 1942," Wherry said. "Since price control or stabilization was invoked it has fallen to $15.50."

"At the same time, corn has gone from $1.07 to $1.27 on the Chicago market and farm labor has risen 117 percent. Neither the producer nor anyone in between him and the distributor has had a safe and fair margin on which to operate."

Sen. Aiken (R) Vt., said it appeared to him that the President is clinging to a support price program, although he may have opened the door somewhat in favor of a program of support prices.

"I am in favor of subsidies only for the people who need them," Aiken declared. "The answer to this is issuance of food stamps to the needy for purchase of the things required to make up a proper diet."

Aiken said hearings on his

DOWDEN HEADS SECOND BANK

Messenger Boy Of 20 Years Ago Takes Post Vacated By G. G. Adkins

Durward D. Dowden of Wayne township, who started working for the Second National bank 20 years ago as a messenger, was elected Tuesday afternoon by the bank's board of directors to serve as its president.

Mr. Dowden will replace George G. Adkins, who is retiring after two years as the institution's head. Mr. Adkins will devote his time to his law practice and to his farms.

The new president has served as vice-president and cashier for the last 10 years.

Promotion of Mr. Dowden to the presidency brought additional changes. Clarence Ray Barnhart, assistant cashier, being promoted to the cashier's position. Joseph P. Noecker was reelected as vice-president.

Mr. Adkins' retirement made a vacancy in the board of directors. A. E. Fissell being named to fill this post. Other directors are John G. Boggs, David S. Dunlap, Mr. Noecker and Mr. Dowden. Miss Mary Ebert and Mrs. Lucille Bostwick were reelected tellers, and Homer Walters, William Mc-

SENTIMENT IN CITY FAVORS LABOR DRAFT

The National Service Act asked by President Roosevelt to assure an all out effort to win the war has the indorsement of Circleville residents.

Most persons questioned Wednesday by The Herald said that such a move should be made, in fact, should have been made some time ago.

The general opinion was: "There are too many persons who are not making a single contribution to the war effort. By putting them under a National Service Act every one will be doing something."

Many persons who were acquainted with the move were still in a fog concerning just how the program will be operated, but there were very few who were not in favor of the plan no matter what system of operation might be used.

FORMER GERMAN COUNT HELD AS SPY FOR NAZIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—A former German count was being held under $25,000 bail today, accused by the FBI of hiding espionage activities under the guise of a book-keeper, research worker and botany student at Columbia university.

Federal agents said the suspect, Wilhelm Albrecht Von Pressentin Von Rautter, tried to send vital military information to Germany through neutral countries and in 1942 attempted to betray Allied invasion plans.

Whether the information, allegedly written in secret ink between the lines of innocuous appearing letters intercepted by censors, ever reached the enemy was not disclosed. The invisible writing was said to have contained information on American war production and morale, the second front, and convoys.

Von Rautter, nabbed in his Brooklyn home, was almost in tears when arraigned before a federal commissioner.

He said he was "forced into this almost at pistol point" when he revisited his native land in 1940, three years after becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States.

The FBI chief also declared Von Rautter had received $5,000 from the Nazi government in payment for espionage services.

TAX CLAIMS OF FOR DRAW FIRE

Senator George Says Cash Needed To Provide Jobs After War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Sen. Walter F. George (D) Ga., chairman of the senate finance committee, answered President Roosevelt's criticism of the two billion, 275 million dollar tax bill today by declaring that taxes can be too high even in time of war.

"I am not interested in individuals except that I hope that every employer and every individual taxpayer can have enough 'meat on the bones' after the war to provide the jobs he will need," said George.

While Mr. Roosevelt called for a "realistic" tax bill in his annual message, he did not specifically indorse the treasury's program, which called for a ten and a half billion revenue measure. The chief executive did say, however, that the present tax bill fails to meet his standard.

The senate, which yesterday adopted an amendment "freezing" social security pay-roll taxes over treasury opposition, today was to begin consideration of the individual tax burden.

The 48-to-17 vote by which the social security amendment was adopted forecast general approval of the finance committee bill. The measure increases the burden of individual taxpayers about 600

H. J. Link of La Porte, Ind., and other speakers reported that beeswax, an important ingredient of lipstick and some other cosmetics, now is being used extensively for protective covering on wings of planes, on shells, on various army equipment to prevent rust and corrosion and in a number of other war-important uses.

RUSSIAN STAND CLEAR

U. S. Does Not Approve Red Program, Prefers Delay Until After War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—There were strong indications today that official Washington is inclined to believe the Polish refugee government would be well advised to accept Russia's terms for a settlement of the boundary dispute between the two countries.

The American government does not approve the unilateral manner in which the Soviets have decided to retain a large part of pre-war Eastern Poland. This government would prefer to see the settlement of boundary disputes postponed until the end of the war.

Nevertheless, the view prevails strongly in official circles that it probably would be wise for the Polish government to accept the Soviet terms under the circumstances.

This attitude is based on what officials consider a coldly realistic view of the situation. Now that the Soviet government has officially proclaimed its determination to keep the western Ukraine and Byelo-Russian territories as part of the Soviet Union, it is felt the Allies will be unable to persuade Moscow to change its mind.

Stand Made Clear

In fact, it is believed Soviet Marshal Joseph Stalin made it clear at the Tehran conference that he is determined to retain most of the territory that Poland took from Russia in 1921.

If the Polish government in London should reject the Russian offer, it is feared Moscow would then permit the Soviet-sponsored

MURRAY CLAIMS LABOR DRAFT IS QUACK MEDICINE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Philip Murray of the CIO denounced President Roosevelt's suggestion for a national service act as "quack medicine" today as AFL Chief William Green was said to be preparing a statement also opposing such a step.

It was reported that Mr. Roosevelt had invited the two labor leaders to the White House for a conference on a "draft-labor" act.

There was no immediate comment from Green because he was enroute to Washington from a bond rally in Indianapolis when the President's annual message was sent to congress. The AFL, however, has long opposed a national service law.

Murray indorsed Mr. Roosevelt's anti-inflation proposals, but declared that the CIO "has been opposed to and will continue to oppose the enactment of any national service legislation."

"For the last two years, whenever the legislative and executive agencies become frustrated out of their own failure to accomplish a total mobilization of our nation's resources, they proceed to recommend a quack medicine of a national service law," Murray declared.

"The CIO has consistently urged that apart from the evils inherent in the attempt to resort to compulsory labor, the approach embodied in national service legislation is ineffectual and actually contains dangers of further complicating rather than aiding our manpower situation."

Bolt In Pacific Fatal To Glenn Cook—Brother Killed In Same Way

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook of Pickaway township have received word from the War department that their son, Technical Sergeant Glenn Cook, 24, was killed by lightning December 18 at his station in the southwest Pacific. His parents believe he was serving in the Solomon Islands region.

The youth is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Cook to be struck by lightning. Emmett Cook was killed July 23, 1938, when working for Allen Good on the Crites farm on the Island road. Donald Smith, also of Circleville, was killed with Emmett Cook.

Glenn Cook had been serving with the air corps. He enlisted in Cincinnati before the United States went into the war, and was at Hickam field when Pearl Harbor was hit by the Japanese. He was home last August for the last time.

Word received by his parents indicates that the youth was working on a plane when he was struck.

Young Cook had many friends and acquaintances in Circleville. He worked at one time for Sam Winfough, Ohio street, as a truck driver.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by a brother, William, attached to a medical corps serving in Italy, and a sister, Kathleen Lutz of Circleville.

BOND SALESMEN REQUIRED FOR WAR BOND DRIVE

With the Fourth War Loan drive scheduled to open next Tuesday, January 18, local bond sale committee leaders are being urged to begin recruiting new and veteran bond salesmen in order to have a sufficient number of volunteers at work to assure success of the campaign.

Pickaway county's goal is $1,244,000, divided into $558,000 for individual purchasers and $686,000 for corporations. The first 13 days of the drive, from January 18 to February 1, will be devoted to sales to individuals.

Chairmen of Loan Drive committees in all of Ohio's 88 counties have received an appeal from Phil J. Trounstein, Cleveland, Ohio War Finance committee chairman, to line up their workers. Ohio expects to have 140,000 volunteer workers in action from January 18 to February 15.

The national goal is $14,000,000 and Ohio's quota has been fixed at $673,000,000.

"The Ohio goal will be harder to reach than previous goals," Trounstein said Wednesday in writing to Clark Will, Local War Loan Drive chairman. "This is

Heaviest Blow Ever Dealt German Defenses About To Be Announced

THREE HOUR BATTLE

Americans Charge Ahead In Italy—Russ Chalk Further Gains

BULLETIN

MOSCOW, Jan. 12—Marshal Stalin announced today in a special order of the day that Soviet troops have captured Sarny, an important railroad town splitting German forces to the north and south.

By International News Service

One of the heaviest blows ever dealt to the German defense air force was expected to be announced momentarily today in the face of Nazi high command claims that a record number of 136 American planes, most of them big bombers, were destroyed in an unprecedented three-hour sky battle over the Reich yesterday. The German claims were believed to be "highly exaggerated."

The raging combat occurred when a huge fleet of United States craft, estimated to include 700 four-engined heavy bombers, attacked an undisclosed target.

According to Swedish reports, the objective was the great German naval base at Danzig, but this was not confirmed immediately.

While the American communiqué awaited assembly of full details, losses and achievements, the German propagandists had a field-day.

First they reported 86 American planes shot down. They raised this to 123, later boosted it to 136, and late this afternoon came through with a claim that an entire wave of "about 100 American bombers" had been forced to jettison its bombs in west German frontier areas.

There seemed to be no doubt that the Germans threw everything they had into the air to intercept this attack and there was equal indication they had lost heavily.

Hit Target Squarely

Returning pilots told of hitting the target "squarely," despite Nazi protestations that few of the bombers reached their objective.

Reliable sources indicated that final figures will show the Nazis lost a "considerable proportion" of the unusually strong fighter opposition they sent into the sky and these may establish an all-time high for German losses over Germany itself.

Meagre official information available made it apparent the attack was on the same scale as the August 17 Flying Fortress assault against Regensburg and a ball-bearing plant at Schweinfurt, Germany, in which 60 four-motored American bombers and two fighters were lost as against 307 enemy planes blasted out of the sky.

While the official compilation was in progress, British and American censors permitted transmission to the United States of the various exaggerated German claims and also sanctioned a statement that the enemy figures were "inaccurate."

The Germans conceded the loss of only two of their craft, adding

MAGIC PILOTS SAVE HARD HIT YANK BOMBERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 12—More than fifty American bombers have returned safely to their bases on electronic automatic pilots although control cables were completely shot away, an American air force officer back from England said today.

This means that at least 500 men have been saved from probable disaster, the officer told officials of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, co-makers of the auto-pilot which has been used two years as standard equipment on the air forces four-engined bombers.

that the crews of seven others are missing.

When the Germans issued their claim of 136 planes destroyed, they said that 124 were bombers and took the line that "the number is still incomplete."

It was apparent the raiders began to encounter heavy opposition as soon as they reached German territory, but there was not the slightest reason to put credence in the enemy assertion that the raid was in any sense a failure.

Specially-trained American "peck busters" slammed through German defenses along the mountain ridges guarding the highway to Rome today and blasted a path to within 100 yards of the key village of Cervaro which spokesmen labeled "a hot spot" for remaining Nazi defenders.

A German high command communique relayed by Trans-ocean admitted the fall of Cervaro after violent fighting. The Trans-ocean dispatch was heard in New York by FCC monitors.

The communique asserted: "In South Italy, violent defensive fighting west of Venafro is being continued. Cervaro and a ridge northeast of there were lost after hard fighting."

Nazis Hurdled Back

Despite adverse weather and sudden thaws which mired the fighting fronts and sent streams and rivers over their banks, the American doughboys and British tommyes hurled the enemy from strategic high ground on the approaches to mountain villages on the road to Cassino and Rome. Other units hurled back a desperate German counter-attack that at one time succeeded in spanning the Garigliano river on the far western section of the front.

With the battle for Cassino mounting to new fury, doughboy patrols cleared out an enemy pocket of resistance 800 yards from Mont Di Piperni, northeast of Cervaro which lies on the route to Cassino.

Farther west the Nazis resisted strongly an American thrust against 200-foot-high Monte Capraro. American units stabbed forward against enemy lines before Cervaro itself and the latest Allied headquarters communique placed them only 100 yards from that village.

Hund Stand Broken

In southern Russia, the German high command sought frantically to stem the Soviet tide which threatened the vital Odessa-Lvov railroad. Huge tank and infantry reserves were being hurled into the fray. Battlefront dispatches said, but still the first and second Ukrainian armies continued to advance.

Spearheads of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's first Ukrainian army threatened to overwhelm the German-held rail junction of Sarny, some 38 miles north of the pre-1939 Polish frontier. One column stood six miles north of the city, while another was approximately the same distance south of the town, and third force was less than five miles to the east.

To the left of these Russian forces, the Fifth Soviet offensive launched within five weeks moved relentlessly forward in a drive pointed toward the five-way rail intersection of Sheptovka.

German-controlled sources said the Russians have landed new forces northwest of Kerch on the Crimean peninsula and scored two breakthroughs at the southern end of the White Russian front.

In the Crimea, additional reinforcements were able to join two Soviet bridgeheads and exert considerable pressure on the Germans, the Vichy radio said.

Heavy fighting was reported north of the Rechitsa-Mozyr railway, where one Russian breakthrough was effected, according to the German overseas agency.

In the southwest Pacific, American airmen heavily raided the key Japanese base at Rabaul on New Britain, damaging nearby airfields and downing 16 would-be enemy interceptors. In addition, two vessels—one a Jap destroyer—and 15 barges were set afire in other Allied air assaults.

Australian and American ground forces continued to hold the initiative both in New Britain and on New Guinea's Huon peninsula.

School for Fighting Mechanics

Plane Repair Crews Do Job Under Fire

OPEN AIR "MANGAR"—With tree branches their only roof, these boys make quick warplane repairs. — HENRY C. NICHOLAS, Central Press Correspondent

LEESBURG, Fla.—Here in the jungles of central Florida there is something new in the annals of war. It is a school such as the world has never seen before, which is paying rich dividends in the winning of this war. Every other branch of the armed services, even the Marines, willingly agree that the graduates of this school are "tough babies."

With combat planes roaring overhead, with paratroopers and anti-aircraft gunnery being dropped from gliders, with skip-bombers diving down to within a few feet above the top of the trees and dropping explosive bombs at targets only a short distance away, here aircraft mechanics do their intricate repair jobs under conditions which would make the old peace-time mechanic wonder what ghastly nightmare he had blundered into.

Strange Work Shop

Their work shop is a small clearing hidden under moss-covered pines. The tools lay on canvas, and the trees are used as the hoists which hold aircraft engines aloft while the mechanics make major repairs. Small trailers carry the lathes and machine tools for making entire aircraft parts.

Under such conditions of the battle front, these mechanics, who are Jacks of all trades as well as skilled workmen, are often called upon to improvise parts when they are not available.

Each mechanic has at hand a gas mask, helmet and gun, ready for instant use when simulated enemy planes come in to strafe or gas them, or to repel landing paratroopers. During these raids the men drop their tools, grab their guns and dive for the nearest fox hole. This schooling trains them to meet any emergency when they leave for duty overseas, and do work on the battle field which would stump the average machine shop.

This school of mechanics at Leesburg is a part of the AAFAC, the Army Air Forces Tactical Command, which is in turn a part of the newly-created Army-Navy staff college, with headquarters at Georgetown university in Washington.

Some of the work aircraft mechanics have accomplished on distant battlefields has already become a legend. Working in the Alaska blizzards and in the Aleutians, with the temperature at times registering 65 degrees below zero, they accomplished miracles.

Their working shops consisted of open spaces with earthen walls and no roofs. With the cold numbing their hands and the willows beating sand into their faces, they stuck to their work and kept the planes flying.

They worked only after dark by flashlight and jeep headlights, because there were Japanese in the Aleutians and this area was black-ed out during the long Pacific nights.

Working under these conditions the Liberators recorded the proud record of not losing a plane on account of maintenance inadequacy.

In the jungles of the South Pacific islands these amazing airplane mechanics accomplished equally amazing results. Some of them went ashore with the first waves of Marines at Guadalcanal. Part of the time they were fighting, and part of the time they were making repairs to jeeps and tanks, waiting impatiently for the capture of the first airfield and the arrival of the first planes.

Emergencies Their Meat

Emergencies were their meat. Little things like turning gasoline drums into drainage pipes or substituting empty pop bottles on power lines when no insulators were at hand.

When the airplanes arrived on Henderson field the mechanics really went to town. Before a supply of new parts had reached them they repaired damaged planes with parts taken from other wrecked planes.

One of the prized stories of the air forces is how our pilots were urged to shoot down Japanese Zeros close to the field, so the mechanics could use part of these planes to repair our own damaged planes. So many of our bombers were repaired with parts taken from shot-down Zeros, that the mechanics believe that one of them may yet bomb Tokyo.

TIME OUT!—The air raid signal means drop tools, grab guns and dive for nearest foxhole—right now!

VANDALS RAID SCHOOL ROOMS AT YELLOWBUD

Ross county authorities are trying to find the vandals who broke into the Yellowbud school building Monday night, ransacked desks and left the building with rubble thrown all through it.

A rear window was jammed to gain entrance. Sheriff's deputies found a stolen car abandoned in the school yard. The car had been stolen in Lima.

Officers termed the break-in and the damage done the worst piece of vandalism they had ever encountered. Books, paper and other contents of desks were strewn around the rooms, potted plants were smashed on the floor, hands of the clock were twisted and an alarm clock and small valise were taken.

Reorganization soon of the City Park Commission is indicated by Mayor Ben H. Gordon, who said that the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which is taking a great interest in the Ted Lewis Recreation center, will be represented by one and possibly two members.

true especially since the current quota includes a record-breaking request for $174,000,000 in Series E, People's War Bonds. Ohioans fell $33,000,000 short of this amount in September E Bond purchases.

"But the job can and must be done," the drive chairman was told.

"If the 88 county organizations hit as hard as in the Third War Loan effort, and if Ohio citizens rally to the nation's appeal for everybody to back the attack, Ohio will take the 'beachhead' it has been assigned," the state chief declared.

"The job requires the same vast manpower as in September," the state chairman said. "We must have the same type and number of hard-working volunteers, all willing to give hour after hour of their time to serve their country. And now is the time for them to step up and prepare for action."

million dollars instead of the six billions asked by the treasury.

"I think taxes can be too high," said George. "I like the expression of Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee that while you can shear a sheep each year and get the wool you can only skin him once. I have said you can tax every year but you can confiscate but once."

"I think taxes can be too high to support an economy on which we must depend for maintenance of a real standard of living after the war. I don't think there ever will be a time when we will need employers of labor more than after this war."

Despite the administration demand for more taxes, it appeared unlikely that proposals would be made in the senate either for higher individual and corporation taxes or for a sales levy.

Sponsors of the present bill point out that it will increase the total federal tax burden to around forty-five billion dollars, which will pay half the cost of the war.

The senate measure rejects the house plan for a simplified individual income tax. Instead, the senate bill retains the victory tax at a three percent rate. It eliminates the credit now allowed for earned income. It also raises the corporation excess profits tax rate to 85 percent.

The house ways and means committee, meantime, announced that hearings will be held tomorrow and Friday on senate action in "freezing" social security payroll taxes for old-age annuities at the present rate of one percent each on employer and worker.

Unless congress adopts the "freeze," the pay-roll tax will be automatically doubled under existing law.

union of Polish patriots to establish a puppet regime in Poland. The danger is seen that such a move might lead to civil war in Poland and to a wholesale purge of those people who remain loyal to the London government. It is further feared that Russia might take an even greater slice of Poland if the Poles reject the present Soviet offer.

Under these circumstances, official Washington is inclined to believe it would be advisable for the Polish government to accept as a basis for discussion the Russian terms, especially since those terms commit the Soviets to support the "establishment of a strong and independent Poland."

Moscow reports have indicated the Soviets are not prepared to deal with the present Polish government under any circumstances, but Washington thinks there is a fair chance of effecting a reconciliation between the two governments if the London Poles accept the Russian offer.

In respect to the Moscow suggestion that Poland seek compensation from Germany in the west for the loss of the western Ukraine and Byelo-Russia, official Washington is of the opinion that this question is a matter for consideration by the Allied European advisory commission. This commission was created by the Moscow pact to consider political and other problems relating to the future of Europe. The United States, Great Britain and Russia are members of the commission.

BINGO OUTLAWED

MAYS LANDING, N. J. — Bingo and other games of chance operated by churches and fraternal organizations are as much a violation of the law as professional gambling, according to a ruling by New Jersey Supreme Court Justice Frederic R. Colle. In addressing the grand jury in Atlantic County Court, Justice Colle declared the jury should deal with all gambling violations in the same way.

Barkley would make no predictions on chances of successful compromise. When congress took a three week recess in December he was appointed to work out a plan. The senate has before it the house-approved Commodity Credit Corporation bill banning consumer subsidies.

"I haven't had a chance to get together with anyone yet, nor to talk it over with the President," Barkley said. "But I am going to see him this week if possible. I shall try to meet with OPA and WFA men and others also."

Thousands Stand In Awe of Year's Puzzle, '44 Income Tax Report

Work on the "puzzle of the year", the 1944 income tax report, has started in Circleville and Pickaway county, but very little progress, if any, has been made by persons who must meet the March 15 deadline.

Even some of the city's lawyers who annually make out scores of tax reports are thinking about turning over their own income tax reports to other lawyers for preparation, throwing in the towel when they start working on figures the government would like to have.

ASHVILLE

This community was greatly shocked and grieved to learn of the untimely death of Lieutenant Richard A. Hedges in an airplane crash. It was the privilege of the writer to know Richard well since the summer of 1930, when I worked on his father's farm. During those fourteen years, I have never heard an unkind word spoken about Richard—a tribute to a quiet, unassuming youth, who was a friend to all who knew him. The sincere sympathy of this community is extended to his family.

Miss Helen E. Bowers, former Ashville teacher, has been employed since September as staff assistant at the Newton Falls, Ohio, U. S. O. Club. Miss Bowers has been working with war production workers, as the Newton Falls Club is an industrial one. On February 1, Miss Bowers will assume her duties as assistant director of the new service-center at Cambridge, Ohio. This center provides recreational activities for patients and permanent personnel of the Fletcher Army hospital. Miss Bowers will have charge of both the junior and senior hostesses, and will plan activities for soldiers' wives and families. The new director at Cambridge is Earl Scriber, former director of the U. S. O. Club at Camp Atterbury, Columbus, Indiana.

The Ashville Board of Public Affairs re-organized Monday evening, and elected C. A. Higley, president of the board. E. F. Schlegel will serve as vice-president. E. W. Seeds is the third member of the so-called water-works board. M. C. Scott was re-employed as waterworks superintendent. Mrs. Louise Leatherwood, the village clerk, also serves as clerk of the board.

Officers of Palmetto Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will be installed Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m.

Don McClain, local manager of the Gas Company, gave instruction Tuesday to the committee appointed to vary village residents in case of a gas shortage. The town has been divided, and each member of the committee has been assigned a section for which he will be held responsible. A few more days of extremely cold weather will probably cause a gas shortage, which will require drastic curtailment of our use of natural gas. The committee is composed of the following members: George McDowell, Lee Nicholson, DuWayne Shook, Harry Fry, Richard Messick, James Woodworth, Jerry Ecard and Jack Irwin.

Glenn T. Grimes of Perry township was elected to complete a two year term replacing H. C. Hines, Walnut township, retired, and Ralph E. May of Circleville township and Ira C. Fisher of Walnut township were re-elected to serve three year terms.

V. R. Wertz, economist of Ohio State university, discussed the 1944 agricultural outlook, and short talks were made by representatives from each of the agricultural cooperatives, Grange, Farm Bureau, extension service and Farm Security administration.

Despite the fact that many farmers have been able to pay off their loans obtained through the association, the organization reports that outstanding loans in the county still amount to $750,000.

Music for the program included several vocal and violin selections by Miss Metta May Hickman, accompanied by Miss Koch, and piano music by Miss Charlene Brobst, Miss Barbara Brobst and Orley Bosworth. Miss Hickman's vocal selections included "Smilin' Thru," "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There" and "My Hero."

WARDENS TAKE TO AIR BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—Game wardens who had been trying to keep the Laguna Madre under control for years were really up in the air over the latest method. The Lagunas, miles of coast line and shallow water, is divided from the Gulf of Mexico by low-lying Padre Island, but the Laguna is too shallow for patrol boats, and could not be patrolled efficiently from the ground. So game wardens solved the problem by taking to the air in PBY and PBM patrol boats and a Navy Blimp.

Mr. Stebleton has been named a district OPA official and expects to report for his new work at the earliest possible moment.

An eligible list containing names of three men will be considered by the rationing board. The Tuesday meeting has been called by George D. McDowell, board chairman.

RAGS ARE RICHES—TODAY

OUTWARD BOUND—Here old clothes are being baled ready for shipment to countries which have already been liberated by the Allies.

By GENEVIA I. COLE
Central Press Correspondent
NEW YORK—Elizabeth street, New York City's old clothes street, on the lower east side, has sold some 840 tons of reconditioned clothing—about $731,460 worth—to Uncle Sam.

He uses the clothes to help spread good will among distressed citizens in Axis despoiled territories, where our invading armies have gone before.

The procurement division of the treasury department buys up the clothes for the government's office of foreign relief and rehabilitation. A typical government order includes 200,000 overcoats (96c each) and 100,000 silk and rayon dresses (25c each).

On last December 10, the government had purchased approximately 2,000,000 garments at an average price of $1.50 per garment and running anywhere from 30c on women's dresses up to $2.85 for men's overcoats.

In addition, there have been purchased for various areas of Africa in the past year approximately 3,000 tons of used clothing, some of which were repaired, some unpaired, all cleaned and fumigated.

Uncle Sam insists that all garments be fumigated, dry-cleaned, and of good quality. They must not be badly faded or have any patches on the outside cloth. They must meet other high specifications, too.

A corps of government inspectors supervise the baling of the old clothes at the dozen used clothes export houses in New York. A red, white and blue round sticker, with a picture of Old Glory, and the words, "From the United States of America, one of the United Nations," goes on each bale.

Clothes Bring Celebration
Distribution centers have been set up in 28 cities and towns in Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Whenever a new center is opened, it is an occasion for a local celebration. Signs are put up on the streets proclaiming, "Merchandise des Allies."

Up to last July 1, the office of foreign relief and rehabilitation had distributed clothing along with food and medicine to 100,000 civilians—four-fifths of them Arabs. Usually a small family is allotted one dress, a suit, and an overcoat.

According to foreign relief officials the government is making a small profit on its old clothes business, too.

There is an old axiom in the clothing business that a man will pay a week's wages for a suit of clothes and Elizabeth street's distant customers earn from 1 to 3 dollars a week.

The Mohammedans wear suit coats over their native garments, called dotis, which look like long nightgowns. They give warmth on cold, winter evenings; and make the wearer look well groomed in the eyes of his fellow men.

Ladies' cloth coats, which have been altered slightly, are shipped abroad, too. They are worn by the male East Indians and Arabians who don't know or care that women first wear them.

Another big market of Elizabeth street is private industry operating abroad. The native workers in the mines and on the rubber plantations of the Belgian Congo think gold a useless reward for their work unless they can buy the white man's sack coat, his hat, his dinner jacket or tail coat. So thousands of bales of used clothing have been sent abroad to the distant port of Marseilles.

Elizabeth street's export business is largely to Africa, India and China, when exports to such countries are possible. They grade export material in five different grades. The lower grades go to countries like India and a few others where labor is very cheap and where they cannot pay anything but the lowest price.

Every day, tons of old clothes pour into Elizabeth street from all over the country. They are bought by the junker, sorted by the jobber, and often sent by carload lots to Elizabeth street. Anything to wear is bundled and sold by the pound to jobbers.

The old clothes houses on Elizabeth street also get part of their supply from rejects and damaged goods from manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

The coats for shipping abroad are sorted into three grades. The

HEDGES FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD MONDAY

Partial arrangements for funeral services for Lieutenant Richard A. Hedges, 25, who was killed last Saturday night near Pocatello, Idaho, have been made. More details will be completed, after Mrs. Hedges, the former Ruth Dunlap, arrives home.

The body will reach Circleville at 10:15 p. m., Circleville time, Friday and will be taken to the Hedges home, 478 North Court street. While Lieutenant Hedges was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hedges of South Bloomfield, he and his wife had lived with Mrs. Hedges' father, Floyd Dunlap, in Circleville after their marriage.

The body will be removed Monday morning to the First Methodist church where services will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen.

It is presumed that military services will be conducted.

Mrs. Hedges is accompanying the body to Circleville. A military escort from Pocatello is also with the body.

Lieutenant Hedges, graduate of Ashville high school in the class of 1936, was killed with four other members of his B-24 bomber crew in a crash into the desert 40 miles from Pocatello. Base authorities are still searching for two members of the crew who are missing.

TOBACCO REGULATION
Pickaway county A. A. A. said Wednesday that under government regulations no burley tobacco allotments for 1944 will be established on any farm on which burley tobacco was not planted in one or more of the years 1939-43 inclusive unless an application for an allotment is made to the A. A. A. office by February 1. An allotment will not be approved for the new 1944 burley tobacco farm unless the person growing tobacco has had experience growing tobacco in the last five years and is living on the farm and is largely dependent on the farm for his livelihood.

Domestic Market Good
As the wartime prosperity reaches even "the other side of the railroad tracks," the home front demand for used clothes is rising. There are around 3,000 used clothes stores in the United States—about 100 being in New York. For the stores, many of the larger wholesalers issue illustrated catalogs.

Most of the old clothes are sold in the southern states. And the best source of supply are the northeastern states.

American laborers and factory employees buy "old pants" to work in, so they can save their better clothes. Impoverished folk in the warmer areas of the south, where people do not wear coats, are able to buy the pants for a great deal less than they would have to pay for new ones. Even if they have had to be much repaired the trousers bring $2 or $3 a pair.

The smartest domestic market of old clothes street is when coats, pants and vests, all matching, are bought and sold. Cash clothes peddlers ring doorbells and shout their wares through the streets of the large cities. As a rule they will pay around $5 for a good suit, and collect a 50 per cent profit on it.

At 2 p. m. each day the New York hawkers pour out of the subways with the loosely-wrapped bundles of clothes on their backs and gather on Elizabeth street. There they bargain with the jobbers for their "finds."

Pawnbrokers' unredeemed pledges are another source of "quality suits." The new wearers generally pay around $10 to $12 for the suits.

About 10,000,000 garments find their way each year to Elizabeth street.

VICTORY IN '44?

RICHARD McALISTER, North Court street: "The European war may be over by March and certainly by April. Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. NEW WORLD NAZIS

It is sad, and also alarming, to see Nazism in this hemisphere. Such a system of arrogance and cruelty would never have been expected, by the average American, to get a foothold here.

So far, fortunately, it is far away from the United States, apparently confined to the southern fringes of South America. Well informed North Americans have long known that Argentina, while professing to be a republic, has been governed with little regard for constitutional and political rights. Most of the Argentinians have wanted democratic government, but the autocratic minority has prevailed. Now there is more dictatorship than usual down there, and Argentina's northern neighbor, Bolivia, seems to have fallen for a "strong" government of the same model.

Poison from those sources inevitably spreads to more northern Latin-American countries. Brazil, largest and strongest of them, is fortunately truly republican, and cooperates finely with the United States in upholding Pan-American democracy. Yet even Brazil has its own devil to exercise, in the form of a rather large population of unreconstructed Germans.

FEWER, BETTER BOOKS

THE American Library Association says its annual year's end survey of reading interests among users of public libraries shows that fewer books were read last year than in the years immediately preceding. But the books chosen by readers were of a higher quality. Light novels and non-fiction read for entertainment only are not so popular, but reading on practical subjects has intensified. There is more interest, too, in world activities, both in war and in politics.

During the depression many people turned to light reading as a means of mental escape from their troubles. A book passed an evening or two cheaply and cheerfully at home. Now that there is more money around, there are more temptations to spend it outside, and for many people there is actually less time. Hours are long and more sleep necessary. It's easier, too, with change in the pocket, to buy a magazine at the corner news stand, and therefore more tempting, especially if it has a condensed complete novel in it, than to walk several blocks to the public library and unwind the rolls of red tape which in some places still discourage readers. Pocket-sized books grow in variety, too, and hence in popularity.

Serious readers, and those with reading habits firmly established, still go where they can have a large choice of good books. They use them not only for the cheerful leisure, always a good use for books, but also for putting themselves ahead, in the sound American manner.

Life on the Bounding Main; How to Gain a Big Appetite: As a Sea Cook During a War Become Submarine Net Layer
By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist
WASHINGTON—I had a wonderful time at breakfast on the train bound from Palm Beach to Washington. I sat beside a brown young sailor. He was a sea cook just back from 38 months on foreign seas. He told me about his job. He also told me what he thought about girls.
Never before had I met a sailor of his profession. I let my coffee bounce itself cold in the fast-moving train while I listened to him talk. Of course, in the prying way of civilians I had led him on to talk with a "Have you been overseas?"
"Yes, ma'am, I sure have," he answered promptly.
"I've been spending my time on a submarine net layer. Where? Oh, everywhere. In the Caribbean. The South Pacific. The Coral Sea. Around the Aleutians. Anywhere we get orders to go—we went. See any fighting? Well, a little. We're not a combat ship, if we do get some stray shots now and then. But me—I don't shoot—I'm the cook."
"No!" I said. "You don't look like a cook." He was very young and slender and even the pile of hot cakes he was eating would leave his waistline thin size all girls envy.
"I sure am the cook," he answered proudly. "I've got two assistants and four mess boys. And, believe me, we keep busy all the time. The fellows on the net layers sure do eat. Specially when we are in action. We cook twice as much food when the boys are working. It's like this—if we have 40 on board I prepare for 80. It really is interesting to watch 'em. You give 'em a plate so full you would think they could not eat another bite till day after tomorrow. Then they put on their divers suits if they don't have them on already, which they mostly do, and they jump overboard, spread the nets down below the water and come up an hour later ready for another plateful."
I wondered how it was possible to cook in heavy seas. Sometimes it was so rough you just couldn't cook anything, the sea going cook replied.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

LOBBYISTS TO PURGE PEPPER

WASHINGTON — Not since the days when Justice Hugo Black, then a senator, exposed the wolf packs of Washington, have Capitol corridors and cocktail lounges been so packed with the brazen, charming gentlemen out to lobby for their special interests.

Lobbyists have even got to the point where they threaten to run candidates against a senator who doesn't vote the way they direct.

Most brazen instance is the recent backstage by-play to force Senator Claude Pepper of Florida to vote for the insurance bill or else face a fight for reelection. The insurance lobby's play is to run Ambassador Joe (Mission to Moscow) Davies against him.

What happened was that Payne Midyette, an ex-president of the National Association of Insurance Agents, called Pepper from Tallahassee and asked how he was going to vote on the bill exempting insurance companies from the Sherman Anti-Trust act. Pepper said he was against the insurance companies and against the bill.

Midyette then became threatening. He is an old friend of Pepper's and is especially close to Pepper's law partner, now a circuit court judge. But he indicated, in none too veiled language, that the insurance lobby was ready to raise $10,000 each from several different groups and put a strong candidate in the field against Pepper.

Since then, it has developed that the proposed candidate is Joe Davies, who would also have the support of the Florida Du Pont interests.

Meanwhile, Pepper is standing pat on his vote. Florida insurance men thought for a time they had him converted and expectantly awaited his appearance before the senate judiciary committee. This was a closed-door session, with nothing supposed to leak out. Next morning, however, Florida insurance men phoned Pepper wanting to know why he hadn't supported their position. They had a virtual transcript of his testimony against them.

All of which illustrates who is dominating, at times actually running, Capitol Hill today.

NOTE: Joe Davies is reported not anxious to run against Pepper, and he probably won't.

Ways To Avoid Insomnia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
YESTERDAY we discussed the occasional, or sporadic, insomnia that all of us—at least adults—experience occasionally, and we went over the drugs, which for some people is the inevitable form of treatment. Today I wish to refer to the other form of insomnia—chronic regularly recurring insomnia which plagues some of our friends.

Some of us are good sleepers and some are poor sleepers. That is undoubtedly true. But sleep is such a fundamental rhythm of life that everybody gets some, whether they realize it or admit it or not. It is as inevitable as the movement of the earth on its axis—the coming of night—the circling of the earth round the sun—the changes of the seasons for the hibernating animals.

Sleep is more of a necessity than water or food. No human being can go, under normal circumstances, more than three days and nights, at the most without going to sleep. In some experiments on human subjects Kleitman kept them awake in periods varying from 60 to 114 hours. After that no amount of running around, pinching, light flashing, noises or any form of persecution was able to keep them awake. Dogs die after being kept continuously awake for 14 days.

Self-Sympathetic Exaggeration
So when anyone tells you that they haven't slept a wink for weeks or even for days, put it down to self-sympathetic exaggeration. Insomniacs notoriously do not count the two or three hour long naps they have.

EXIT BOMBSIGHT

There is every indication that the U. S. bombing to which the Japs will be subjected in 1944 will be without benefit of bombsight.

The Norden bombsight has been publicized as the great secret appliance which will help us win the war. It has been highly successful in the European theatre, but in the Pacific it has actually become excess baggage.

Supply officers in Washington are still assigning bombsights to planes for Pacific action, but fliers are urging that the device be left at home. They have found that the most successful air attack in the Pacific is the low-level tree-top bombing, in which medium bombers sweep in on the target and let the bombs drop when they are so close they can't miss. This is better than any precision instrument ever invented.

Also, it is less dangerous than high-

District meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star was to be in Circleville January 30 with the local chapter No. 90, serving as host chapter.

10 YEARS AGO

A total of 89 major crimes was committed in Pickaway county during 1933 for which formal charges were placed against the offenders, according to a report sent to the U. S. department of justice from Sheriff Charles Radcliff's office.

Merritt Graham, who had been at his home on leave, returned to Pelham Bay, New York, to rejoin his command in the navy.

Over 550 men were sent to camps in this country from Pickaway county and a majority of these went abroad. Company F left Circleville with 153 men and officers and the machine gun company, with 30 men.

DIET AND HEALTH

Ways To Avoid Insomnia

The chronic, regular, recurrent insomnia can be put down unqualifiedly as a case of nerves—a psycho-neurosis. In spite of their claims for long distance wakefulness, they look fat, sassy, and in the best of health.

Obviously the last sort of remedy for this kind of insomnia is the use of any kind of drug. Psychologic treatment is best.

Ways to Induce Sleep
All of them have some tricks to induce sleep. Most insomniacs begin to get set to stay awake right after dinner. They know they are not going to sleep tonight. The tricks are a release mechanism which shunts this line of thought.

For some a hot bath will induce sleep, and others it will wake up. The hot glass of milk or some kind of food is a general favorite. Hunger is a foe to restful sleep. At the opposite pole from the hot bath, many of them want to throw the bed clothes off and air out. Some even like to walk around naked except for slippers—even go out of doors that way on cold nights or walk around the house.

Better than any drug, even the barbiturates, for occasional insomnia, is the wet pack. You will have to put aside your prejudices about sleeping in cold, damp sheets when you employ it. Put a rubber sheet over the mattress, then a heavy blanket. Then wrap out a sheet in water of ordinary cold tap temperature—60 to 70 degrees—and spread it over the blanket. The patient lies down on this sheet with arms raised and you fold one half the sheet over his body. Then the arms come down to the sides and you cover them and the rest of the body with the other half of the sheet. Then cover with the blanket. First the patient shivers, he is warmed up the damp sheet. He is surrounded by warm steam. Delicious! Sleep!

SYNOPSIS
MALLORY BAKER, self-centered, but young, beautiful and talented singer, has achieved success with the aid of TOBY PATRICK, her manager. He has been her agent since she was an entertainer striving to reach the top. En route to Mexico by plane, Mallory meets an attractive, rather mysterious young man.
RICHARD BLYTHE

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
"FOR HEAVEN'S sake, Prism, do you have to say that?" Mallory Baker's fingers were nervous on the steering wheel.
The colored woman's voice was unperturbed. "All I said was swell spot for a murder. I didn't mean nothin'. People are always sayin' things like that," she drawled in self-defense. "You know, in deserted buildin's and dark alleys and in all them sorta places. And this old fog makes as dark a place as anything. We can't see nothin'. I'll bet you don't even know what's over that a-way and that a-way." Her hand dropped limply to right and to left like a fat black fish where fog had draped over the road.

"I'm glad I don't!"
The nervousness in her voice drew a concerned glance from her maid. "What's the matter with you, Miss Mallory? Ague?"
"Prism, I'm in trouble."
"Course," responded the colored woman with a manner that approached boredom. "That's 'oblivious' to see. All I'm waitin' for is to see if it's the same as all your million other troubles or is it different from the same old stuff this time. Different, I hope," she grumbled.

"It's different. Plenty different. You see, Prism, I don't like that murder sort of talk, because I saw murder on my way down from Laredo to Monterrey."
Mallory did not know just what she expected from her servant. Perhaps a gasp, perhaps a quick prayer, perhaps a stunned silence. Assuredly she did not expect that well-known high cackle of laughter, as if she had told Prism some shout-producing joke.

"Boy, this time it's different, all right!" The fat maid kept trembling with laughter. "Oh, Miss Mallory, that's really a good one. Say, you did need a case. You know when something like that happens to me I always say, 'Look out now, Prism! Look out now! You're getting cracky.' So I blink my eyes real fast a few times and then it's gone." She chuckled. "You'd better take it right easy for a while, Miss Mallory."
Mallory dared not take her eyes from what little she could see of the highway long enough to give her maid a scathing look. "Prism, you're the one who is cracky, as you express it, right now. Your philosophy about eye-blinking is fine except it won't work when you've really seen something. And, believe me, I really saw something." Before Prism could antagonize her further she began to tell the entire story.

It took her quite a while, because she had to devote herself to the dangerous driving. Despite that, Prism never once interrupted. She waited until the girl had finished.
"Looks like they're really puttin' the bee on you, Miss Mallory."
"I wish you hadn't made me take the bullets out of my revolver." "Make you? I didn't make you do it." The maid's voice was more natural now. "And what would you have done if they'd been a dozen bullets in that gun? Twirled it on your finger like a cowboy in the movies? No, sir! You'd a skeedaddled just like you did skeedaddle. And I don't blame you. But if they come bustin' around for trouble they'll find it—say, you don't think they'd come traipsin' back and watch for you to come through this fog, do you?"
"Swell spot for a murder!" quoted Mallory.
"Aw, please, Miss Mallory, you hush. I didn't know how things was when I said that. For a moment she pondered, her large head bent slightly to one side. "You know, Miss Mallory," she vowed in a slow threat, "if anyone hurt you I believe I could tear them into smithereens with my own bare hands."

"Prism," choked the girl, "you're wonderful."
"Yesm. Thank you. Only I shouldn't have made you take the bullets out of that pistol."
"Stop fretting. The customs officers," confessed the girl, "made me leave the empty gun with them—but I told John Smith and his brother that I smuggled it in."
Again Prism's noisy "uph rang out. "Miss Mallory, you tell so many different tales I never know which is which. Now I'm a truth-believer myself, but it's gratifyin' to have some little lies laying around to pick up when it's your convenience." After a moment of silence she said, "But I can't help wishin' we was back in New York with Mr. Patrick runnin' around bangin' things."
"Well, I don't. The nicest part of being in Mexico is being away from Mr. Patrick. I can do without his running around banging things. And his eternal yelling. I'm here to rest, Prism, to REST!"
"Jehosophats! If this is restin' bring on the work!"

Mallory continued her somewhat ridiculous defiance. "Suppose it is slightly stormy? It's a wonderful change, just the same. Here, there are new customs, new people. There is atmosphere, Prism." While talking, Mallory had to admit that what actually held her in the foreign country was Tod I-trick. For the fear of his taunts, if she should skitter home. She'd never hear the last of it.
"I wouldn't know about the country," came Prism's dry condemnation, accompanied by a glance out the fog-banked car window. "I can't see any country right now."
But soon they were able to see a bit of country again. They dropped swiftly from the cloud and fog skies down a thousand feet into a beautiful valley, and there lay the town of Jacala. A cluster, two clusters, in fact, one on each side of the highway, of weather-worn crude plaster houses, tiny stores, cantinas and small, quaint hotels. Although these buildings showed clearly, they at the same time were damp and clouded by the overhead grayness.

"I'm hungry," the girl said. "I'm going into this little restaurant and get something."
In a few minutes she returned with a mixture of meat, onions, lettuce, all covered with a spicy gravy to be carefully managed so that it did not go down the front of one's clothing. Also, she had two bottles of Mexican beer.
Prism's eyes slanted down; her nose as she deliberated over the first bite. "Wish I know'd what's in this mesa."
"Maybe it's better you don't. It might be a fried cactus worm. They do eat them here, you know," she said pleasantly, enjoying the dismay on the colored woman's face.
But Prism took a mouthful nevertheless. "Beef," she informed the girl coldly. "And it's good. I'm going to make some of these for Mr. Tod when we get back to New York."

They had been walking about, admiring what they could see of the view, while they had their lunch. Now they limbed back into the car and headed on.
"Just more of the same," Prism commented, as they pursued the circuitous road.
For a while she was right. Mile after mile of the same mountainous country, dripping with fog. But presently the early afternoon heat began lifting that fog, clearing the majesty of the mountains. Too, the roadside growth was changing. Tropical dampness was giving way to desert dryness, similar to that below Laredo. The soil, slightly volcanic now, was covered with globe cacti and organ pipe. It grew warmer and warmer.
Prism was reading from a folder, given Mallory at one of the inspection points. "It says there's a big tree next town. More than 400 feet around. Some place of kindling!" She was peering left as they reached Zimapan. "There!" she pointed past Mallory's nose at the enormous cypress that lived up to its publicity. A castle of a tree that made a person feel happy and humble, both at once.
Except for gasoline and oil—and to have the top put down on the car—they did not stop again on the arduous trip into the city. After the sun sank, the girl regretted having had the top lowered, for the chill that the altitude brings on at night began to penetrate her very bones.
She regretted another thing. The route into the city, so simple on paper, became an intricate thing of twisted streets, with intersecting streets that permitted only one-way driving. Too, the corners exhibited everything except a signpost. Even in the daylight the girl was not sure she could have found her way; in the dark she was diametrically lost.

In some manner she had strayed into one of the cheaper sections and now found the car surrounded by dirty lights, strange noises and smell, people who got in the way of the automobile, pointed at her hair and yelled unintelligible remarks to other people. Children leaped onto the back of the car and rode along, shouting and giggling, immune to insults they could not understand.
"Worse'n drivin' across to get on Triborough bridge," grumbled Prism.
Mallory did not reply. She didn't know what to say. She didn't even know what to do. Then she had an idea. She pulled to the curb and stopped, clambered quickly to a perch on the back of the seat and burst into Habanera from "Carmen."

Your originality in everything you do will, if cultivated, bring you happiness and remuneration, if today is your birthday. Your children will be mechanically inclined or artistic. You are naturally robust and strong, and if you take care of yourself, you will never have any serious illness.
Major Objectives
Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which some sudden and unusual opening for putting over major objectives of exceptional scope or singular character. While this opportunity should be grasped with determination, and due aggressiveness, yet the effort must be backed up by practical skill and well-organized tactics, as well as controlled and tempered conduct, probably in connection with a wise head or less excitable influence. Certain dangers not only as to the success of projects but as to physical mishaps or accidents are not improvable. Serene, composed and regulated acts should sustain skill and unusual ingenuity.

A determined effort to put over exceptional or untried programs and projects by main force is noted in this day's astral configurations. A strong urge to forge ahead, regardless of accepted systems or regulation methods, is likely to prove an impediment, since reckless or ill-directed energies might beget explosive conduct or perhaps physical dangers. While speed and strenuous action may be necessary, yet studious and well-planned tactics may enlist the support of steeper and calmer influences. Results depend on safe and sane acts.

Star Grange Installs New Official Family

80 Present At Ceremony In School

Sixty grangers and twenty juveniles were present Tuesday at the meeting of Star grange in Monroe school auditorium and witnessed the fine installation work of Mrs. Ottis Leist and her team of officers. Inducted were C. M. Reid, worthy master; David Stoer, overseer; Mrs. Ethel Davis, lecturer; Richard Phillips, steward; Billy Truit, assistant steward; the Rev. E. E. Ewing, Chaplain; C. E. Dick, secretary; Earl Fisher, treasurer; Adrian Liston, gate keeper; Ruth Long, Ceres; Mary Katherine Dick, Pomona; Ruby Clark, Flora; Pauline Conley, lady assistant steward.

During the business hour, Mr. Reid appointed four standing committees for the coming year. Mrs. Pearl Grimsley, Mrs. Sadie Wills and Lawrence Phillips will serve as members of the finance committee; Clyde Neff, C. D. Hosler, Harry Bailey, Mrs. Herman Porter, Pauline Conley and Mrs. William Snyder, the relief committee; Martha Anderson, chairman, Ellen Dennis and Marie Dick, the home economics committee; Mrs. Charles Hosler, Miss Laura Long and Mrs. Hoadley Warner, the floral committee.

A covered dish supper was served during the closing social hour.

Benevolent Association

Mrs. Henry S. Lewis and Mrs. C. G. Stewart were named members of a nominating committee to present a slate of officers for the Circleville Benevolent association at the meeting of the organization Tuesday in the city cottage. Miss Florence Dunton was in the chair for the business hour and asked the committee to report at the annual meeting in February.

Miss Clara Southward read her report for December, 1943, stating that as case worker she had made 32 visits in the homes of clients and 31 visits in their behalf. There were 88 office interviews with applicants and 30 interviews with consultatives. Donations of used clothing and various miscellaneous articles came to the cottage from 17 individuals, St. Philip's Guild and the Child Conservation league and helped to supply needs in 49 families. Some new clothing and household supplies were purchased. Supplies issued from the cottage included 31 pairs of shoes, 118 garments and 93 miscellaneous articles, including some bedding. The games and toys from the Luther league and an assortment of dolls and Teddy bears from an unknown donor helped to add Christmas cheer to children in many homes.

A nice lot of sandwiches and potato chips came to the cottage the day before Christmas, and were given to five families, each expressing thanks for the food. Senior Girl Reserves, Girl Scouts Troop 1 and Troop 4 and one kind-hearted gentleman wanting to help needy families have a good Christmas dinner were given names and addresses of five families.

On account of rationing, it was not possible for the association to distribute baskets of food for Christmas as has been done every season for more than 25 years. Forty families were on the list in 1942, the 1943 list not being so great. A few needed to be remembered and sickness added several to the group needing help. The best that could be done by the association was to send Christmas Greeting cards and orders for groceries and let the recipient supply the necessary ration points for the food selected. Fifteen families were thus remembered.

JAP KILLERS PROVE IT

PULLMAN, Wash. — Members of United States Army unit don't doubt the word of the natives on New Guinea any more. When natives would tell the soldiers: "We kill ten Japanese today," they were dubious. Finally, the natives proved their statements, bringing in the ears of Japanese they had killed.

BEAU JACK'S BOSS TOLD TO KEEP VIEWS QUIET

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Chick Wergeles, manager of Lightweight Beau Jack, had a warning today from the New York Boxing commission that any further beefs concerning referees must be delivered to the commission.

Wergeles loudly criticized Referee Eddie Joseph's scoring of the recent Madison Square Garden non-title bout between the Beau and Lulu Costantino. The judges had awarded the decision to Beau Jack but Joseph voted eight rounds of the 10-round go to Costantino.

HUBBELL BUSY

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Carl Hubbell, director of the New York Giants' farm system, announced today he had begun negotiations for a working agreement with the Erie, Pa., Class D Pony League club. He said he stopped off at Erie on his return trip from Springfield, O., where he made tentative arrangements for a similar agreement with that city's Class D Ohio State League club.

BEAN TOWN MAY NOT SEE PROS PLAY IN 1944

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The possibility of the city of Boston getting pro football in 1944 appeared definitely out today as the National league opened its two-day Winter meeting in Chicago.

The club owners were reported in tacit agreement that the present is not the time for expansion of the circuit beyond its present 10 members.

Radio Impressario Ted Collins has a franchise for a team in Boston, but it is up to the rest of the league to determine when he can start operating, according to other franchise holders.

However, it was understood that Collins was prepared to insist that Boston be permitted to field a team this Fall, if he can get the necessary personnel in the form of players and coaches.

He is reported already to have signed a five-year contract for use of Fenway park, home of the Red Sox baseball club.

Representing Collins at the meeting was William Shea, an attorney, who faced a certain fight if he attempted to claim the right of the Beantown to enter the pro grid wars this Fall.

Meanwhile, Art Rooney, co-owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, was reported ready to combine his team with another club again for the 1944 season. The Steelers merged with the Philadelphia Eagles for the 1943 campaign.

Rooney was reported as saying he was willing to pair with the Cleveland Rams, who did not operate last season, or the Chicago Cardinals for the 1944 season.

ODELL DESIGNATED AS GRID PLAYER OF YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12—Bob Odell, University of Pennsylvania's all-American back, added another honor to his long list today—the Maxwell memorial trophy as the "outstanding football player of 1943."

The presentation was made by the Maxwell Memorial Club at the Hotel Warwick before 350 persons, including Odell's coach, George Munger.

Odell was named all-American by three press services and Collier's magazine.

East-West Game Only One With Excuse For Existence, Says Writer

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—As a sort of follow up to a recent column on the same subject, it seems to me that there is only one post-season football game played in non-war years which justifies its existence. This is the annual East-West all-star encounter at San Francisco for the benefit of the Shriners' crippled children fund. It is also the only game in which the players should participate without compensation.

That is a sore point. We will go farther into it in a moment. At hand are two letters, one from the promoters of the East-West game and the other from a mid-west sports editor who takes exception to our recent stand on post-season games generally.

A break-down of receipts and expenditures for the East-West game shows that the crippled children's fund will get approximately 62 percent of the gross receipts, or about $77,016.

That justifies the East-West game as an annual promotion that does a good deed for a lot of needy kids. Nothing should ever happen to this game, nothing should interfere with keeping a lasting place on the sports calendar. If anything, everything possible should be done to make it ever bigger and better.

Just Publicity
Getting round to the other bowl games—or, more specifically, the post-season games of all kinds—they are in too many instances lary in the South, but I can put a finger on a considerable number of institutions which conduct athletics successfully on a basis of strict amateurism. One of these is the University of Nebraska. I am nothing more than publicity schemes, designed to publicize some point and in some instances to raise money for no particular reason.

That's all right, too. But they are strictly commercial, except in scattered instances of late when some of the funds are diverted into the war effort. No war, no funds, except to the backers thereof. Or, in any case, if the funds are sent into charity channels they still are publicity schemes.

That brings us around to the second aforementioned letter, the same being from Mr. C. C. Sherman, sports editor of the Lincoln, Neb., star, which letter is a reply to the previous column. He says in part:

"X X X the moment collegiate athletic directors propose to compensate football players (for playing in the post-season games) the institutional heads (college presidents and chancellors) would wipe football from the slate."

"It is ever so true that the evils of proselytizing and subsidization are more or less general, particularly in position to verify this statement."

Mr. Cy Sherman insists that football players shouldn't be paid for participating in the post-season bowls. He goes on to explain that Nebraska has an athletic plant that cost between two and a half and three million dollars built from football profits for the use of the student body and that therefore in this sense football profits are justified for the good of the whole.

Should Pay
Nobody will argue about that. But they still should pay football players for participating in the promotions known as bowl games. If necessary restrict these games to seniors who are going out into the world in most cases in need of a few bucks.

NOW THERE ARE TWO SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—This is the story of Rabaul, Gasmata, and the late mourned Soputa, all English bulldogs. They were triplets; now they are twins. When Soputa died recently he created a stir, which was felt as far away as Washington, D. C. The dogs are mascots of a famous light bombardment unit. Soputa, lost in a plane crash, had been entered on the manifest as General Soputa. Somehow, the manifest, or the contents thereof, reached Washington. Considerable explaining had to be done.

HOPE'S LEAD CUT
CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The Willie Hoppe-Walker Cochran three-cushion billiard match took on the aspects today of a bitterly fought championship affair, although it is only an exhibition. Cochran, who hails from San Francisco, took the first two of the three blocks they played yesterday, 51 to 48 and 50 to 40, but Hoppe, playing as if the world title hung on the issue, rallied in the final block to win, 62 to 48, in 54 innings. That gave Hoppe a margin of only one point for the entire day's play, 150 to 149, which was exactly his advantage after two blocks the day before when he racked up 100 points to 99 for the westerner. The score for their Chicago appearance stood at 250 to 248, a thin margin of two points for Willie, at the end of the first few blocks.

NAVY TO CARRY ON GRID PLANS, KNOX DECLARES

Secretary Speaks At Confab Of Touchdown Club; Many Awards Are Made

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Secretary of the Navy Knox today favors continuation of football and other outdoor sports during the war.

Knox wholeheartedly endorsed sports during wartime in addressing the annual dinner of the Touchdown Club of Washington during which trophies were awarded to the nation's outstanding professional, college and high school football stars.

The navy secretary said he usually agrees with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, but on wartime football they had differed.

"The navy," Knox said, "took the position that football should be continued, because we believe that the spirit that makes good football players makes good soldiers and sailors."

"We in the navy believe in football and other sports that require physical contact with opponents. We are in a war in which one kills or gets killed. I don't know any thing that prepares men better for that kind of war, which we have especially in the Pacific, than what we get out of football."

Also present among the 1,000 at the dinner were Admiral William F. Halsey, Allied commander in the South Pacific, Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, new commander of the Marine corps, and other high ranking army and navy officers.

Bertelli Outstanding

Vandegrift presented Angelo Bertelli, the great Notre Dame quarterback who is now in the marines, the club's Walter Camp memorial trophy for being the outstanding all-American football player in 1943.

Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell awarded the Knute Rockne memorial trophy to Casimir Mysliniski, army center, for being the outstanding all-American lineman.

Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins was awarded the club's trophy as the outstanding football player in professional ranks. Arthur J. Bergman, coach of the Redskins, received the trophy from Admiral Halsey on behalf of Baugh, who was reported unable to attend because a manpower shortage required he attend his cattle ranch in Texas.

Halsey also presented the Robert Smith trophy to Ensign Dick Todd, of the Iowa Seahawks, who formerly played with the Redskins.

The club extended its awards to baseball, and Ossie Bluege, manager of the Washington Senators received a special token as the outstanding pitcher of the year.

Robert Simmons, club president, officially gave the organization support to a drive to place the name of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

DUKE SCORES ACE

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 12—The Duke of Windsor, governor-general of the Bahamas, could boast a record today much desired by most golfers. The Duke made a hole in one on the 18th green at the Bahamas Country club yesterday. It was his third "ace," since he performed the same feat previously in England and in Brazil.

Jaycees To Select Outstanding Local Young Man for 1944.

RECORD TO BE KEPT OF ALL UNDERTAKINGS

Award To Go To Citizen Between Ages Of 21 And 36
Aired At Dinner Meet
Inter-Club Assembly Set With Erwin Johnson As Speaker

Another excellent project, selection of the outstanding young man in Circleville during 1944, is being conducted by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce. The project is in line with a national Jaycee undertaking, a distinguished service award to be made to the person between ages of 21 and 36 inclusive selected by the Jaycee committee.

Judson Lanman, president of the Junior Chamber, appointed John Moore, Maxwell Lee and Robert Elsea as a committee to keep records of work done in the community and for the community during the year. This committee will recommend the ultimate recipient of the distinguished service honor.

Announcement of this program highlighted a dinner meeting conducted Tuesday evening in the Betz restaurant.

Inter-Club Meet

Jaycees also announced that they would serve as hosts February 8 at an inter-club meeting to be conducted in Hanley's tearoom, with Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and senior Chamber of Commerce to be invited. Sheldon Mader is in charge of the program and arrangements, while Boyd Stout has been designated to invite the guests to the dinner session.

Erwin Johnson, the "Early Worm" of the radio station WBNS, Columbus, will be the principal speaker. Johnson, who appeared at a Jaycee ladies' night meeting some months ago, made such a good impression that he is being returned for a stag meeting. His radio program is a popular one in Circleville.

Officers Speak

Jaycee members heard brief talks by two state Jaycee officials, Andy Vagniers, state vice-president, and Ron Ansley, state public relations director, both of Columbus. Both men spoke briefly, urging the Jaycees to make reports of their many activities so they could receive proper recognition, and they also urged the local unit to be represented at all state board sessions. The club was praised for its many activities.

A letter was read from George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, thanking Jaycees for the interest in the county basketball tournament. The Junior Chamber had urged that the tournament be held this year in the C.A.C. gymnasium, but county school men decided that the gym needs repairs and remodeling. The tourney will be held in Jackson township school building, scene of the competition last year.

Backs Park Project

A letter was also read from W. E. Wallace, West Main street, in which he promised his support for the Jaycee move to develop the Ted Lewis Recreation Center. Mr. Wallace was a member of the committee which raised money to buy land for the park.

Jaycees were invited to attend a state meeting March 19 and 19 in Columbus to hear an address by Bruce Palmer, national president, who is soon to be inducted into the army.

The organization was urged also to listen to a series of broadcasts starting Friday, January 14, over Mutual stations and WHKC, Columbus, during which the distinguished service award will be publicized. The broadcast will be conducted 26 weeks. The award will be presented this week to Major Joe Foss, marine air corps ace, who has downed at least 26 Japanese planes in Pacific theatre fighting.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

Democrats of the 11th, 6th and 7th congressional districts are expected to gather Wednesday evening in Washington C. H. for a campaign rally. Whether any leaders of the party from Pickaway county will be present has not yet been decided.

Here's Why Road to Rome Is So Tough

EIGHTH'S C. O.—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, hero of El Alamein.

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rome by New Year's Day!

Perhaps a question mark would be more fitting.

In either case, the flat declaration expresses hope.

Favoring this possibility is the fact that in certain respects the going will prove easier for the Anglo-British forces north of the Garigliano river.

Russia has never indicated publicly she considers our efforts in Italy to represent a second front. Evidence is piling up, however, demonstrating the tremendous value of this invasion both to the Russians and the British American forces which may hit the continent at other points.

You've got to look closely at Italy to get the picture. Unlike the Free French, the Italian army has provided a total of virtually no aid to the invaders. Since the American landing at Salerno, Sept. 9, the Americans have lost, in killed, wounded and missing, something more than 10,000 men. British casualties likewise have been relatively heavy.

At the moment, American Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, and British Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, have their forces flung along the Garigliano, north of Montecassino (midway between the Tyrrhenian sea and the Adriatic) and on to the Adriatic near Ortona.

Three Tough Lines

This means our forces already have pierced the Nazi's so-called winter line, first of three we must breach with heavy fighting before we reach France and Germany.

Piercing this defense line is not so simple as the statement suggests, for the Germans occupy mountain positions difficult to assault, to say nothing of taking. It is not strictly speaking a "winter line," the phrase having arisen from German orders to their troops to hold here for two months.

Whether the Allies will reach Rome by New Year's Day depends upon many factors, not all of which can be made public. German resistance may be taken as factor number one. Then there are the problems of supply and weather.

Foe's Stubborn Resistance, Problem of Supply, Fierce Weather Hindering Allies

ON TO ROME—The long, circuitous route over which the Allies must bring supplies for the Fifth and Eighth Armies is shown by this map.

The Germans get their supplies from bases in Germany, perhaps 500 miles north of the fighting line. Ours must reach our troops directly and indirectly from England and the United States. All of them reach southern Italy via the sea, with very limited and specialized quantities arriving by air.

We land at Taranto, Bari, Naples—all badly smashed by German demolition squads or our own bombers.

Yet, as our bombers range from Italian fields, smashing the Nazis both in their prepared positions and along their lines of supply, General Clark's troops have pinned down the Germans along the Garigliano, giving General Montgomery an opportunity to swing north and west from the Adriatic side of the boot in a wide, enveloping movement.

It means the toughest sort of fighting. Several rivers must be crossed. The Nazis have created formidable defenses in the hills. Quick-moving mobile artillery backing up infantry defends every height. Tanks lay in waiting behind every natural passageway.

The enemy is estimated to have some 50 divisions in Italy, 10 of these facing the Allies, with 40 patrolling the coast lines, resting in reserve and policing industrial areas.

FIFTH'S C. O.—Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, America's able leader.

more amphibious landings will be attempted, perhaps from both the Tyrrhenian and Adriatic.

They have reputedly been engaged for some time in demolition at several ports.

For some eight months now they have been spreading a network of defensive positions across the peninsula. Many thousands of laborers have been toiling on this work, creating defenses from La Spezia, the naval base, to Rimini, on the other shore of the boot.

Could the enemy hold this line, he would be able to hold intact (until our bombers get in their locks) the industrial triangle whose corners touch Genoa, Turin and Milan. Quite aside from the production he would retain, this territory also protects the Reich by holding the Allies back from the Alps.

Though ground fighting continues far to the south, our air forces give the Germans no rest. Heavy bombers protected by fighters can reach Verona, Milan, Turin with ease. One of the fiercest air battles yet reported from Italy occurred recently as our four-engine giants smashed at the railway yards in Rimini, less than an hour's flying from northernmost Italy.

Colossal Blow Impending

The mouthings of Hitler and Mussolini brought them no permanent victories. General Clark commander of the American Fifth Army, says little. But his companion, General Montgomery, commanding the British Eighth, recently declared the Allies' readiness to deliver a colossal blow.

That blow seems in the making. We outfought the Germans in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns to date; and the Germans now are "in the very condition in which we want them."

Failure of Rome would represent completion of an important stage of our attack on Europe. If the Fifth and Eighth reach Rome by Jan. 1, Clark and Montgomery will have exceeded their expectations. If we haven't entered Rome when the year ends, we can be assured Tommies and Yanks together are charging at the outer bastions of an unhappy capital.

The Germans obviously fear

altitude bombing. Coming in low, the planes avoid detection by the enemy, whereas the high-altitude planes are caught both by instruments and vision.

The tree-top flying requires greater pilot skill, also the use of delayed-action bombs so that the planes can get away from the target before it blows up under the plane.

This is the kind of work that was done in the famous battle of the Bismarck Sea, in which every Jap ship was destroyed. It was also how the Nazis sneaked up on Bori and wreaked havoc with Allied shipping.

MORRISON'S MAIL

Probably never before in history has a member of Congress so flagrantly used the free Congressional frank as Representative Jimmy Morrison in his current campaign for Governor of Louisiana. The marathon-jungled, midget "Huey Long" believes in sparing no expense in his campaign—as long as the Federal taxpayers are footing the bill.

At the last count, approximately a million pieces of campaign literature—folded, addressed and mailed entirely at the taxpayers' expense—had been sent out by Morrison, urging Louisianans to vote for him in the January primary. The mailing charge alone would amount to about $30,000 if Morrison had to pay it out of his own pocket.

However, Morrison hasn't contented himself with this gratuity. He has also introduced some brand new wrinkles that should open the eyes of his older, though less ingenious colleagues.

A great believer in the "personal touch," Jimmy has four girl employees of the House majority room addressing by hand the envelopes for his campaign ballyhoo. It would be quicker and far less expensive to use an addressograph, but Morrison wants the Louisiana voters to believe that they are getting something special. He can well afford to do this—it's nothing out of his pocket.

For a while, one girl was given the job of imitating Morrison's signature on campaign letters sent to Louisiana voters, so that the voters would think he was writing to each of them individually.

AIR CRAFT BOMBERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 12.—More than fifty American bombers have returned safely to their bases on electronic automatic pilots although control cables were completely shot away, an American air force officer back from England said today.

This means that at least 500 men have been saved from probable disaster, the officer told officials of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, co-makers of the auto-pilot which has been used two years as standard equipment on the air forces four-engine bombers.

DISASTER FOR HUNS INDICATED IN DISPATCHES

that the crews of seven others are missing.

When the Germans issued their claim of 136 planes destroyed, they said that 124 were bombers and took the line that "the number is still incomplete."

It was apparent the raiders began to encounter heavy opposition as soon as they reached German territory, but there was not the slightest reason to put credence in the enemy assertion that the raid was in any sense a failure.

Specially-trained American "peak busters" slammed through German defenses along the mountain ridges guarding the highway to Rome today and blasted a path to within 100 yards of the key village of Cervaro which spokesmen labeled "a hot spot" for remaining Nazi defenders.

A German high command communique relayed by Trans-ocean admitted the fall of Cervaro after violent fighting. The Trans-ocean dispatch was heard in New York by FCC monitors.

The communique asserted: "In South Italy, violent defensive fighting west of Venafro is being continued. Cervaro and a ridge northeast of there were lost after hard fighting."

Nazis Hurdled Back

Despite adverse weather and sudden thaws which mired the fighting fronts and sent streams and rivers over their banks, the American doughboys and British tommies hurled the enemy from strategic high ground on the approaches to mountain villages on the road to Cassino and Rome. Other units hurled back a desperate German counter-attack that at one time succeeded in spanning the Garigliano river on the far western section of the front.

With the battle for Cassino mounting to new fury, doughboy patrols cleared out an enemy pocket of resistance 800 yards from Mont Di Piperno, northeast of Cervaro which lies on the route to Cassino.

Farther west the Nazis resisted strongly an American thrust against 200-foot-high Monte Capraro. American units stabbed forward against enemy lines before Cervaro itself and the latest Allied headquarters communique placed them only 100 yards from that village.

Hunt Stand Broken

In southern Russia, the German high command sought frantically to stem the Soviet tide which threatened the vital Odessa-Lvov railroad. Huge tank and infantry reserves were being hurled into the fray. Battlefield dispatches said, but still the first and second Ukrainian armies continued to advance.

Spearheads of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's first Ukrainian army threatened to overwhelm the German-held rail junction of Sarny, some 38 miles west of the pre-1939 Polish frontier. One column stood six miles north of the city, while another was approximately the same distance south of the town, and third force was less than five miles to the east.

To the left of these Russian forces, the Fifth Soviet offensive launched within five weeks moved relentlessly forward in a drive pointed toward the five-way rail intersection of Sheptovka.

German-controlled sources said the Russians have landed new forces northwest of Kerch on the Crimean peninsula and scored two breakthroughs at the southern end of the White Russian front.

In the Crimea, additional reinforcements were able to join two Soviet bridgeheads and exert considerable pressure on the Germans, the Vichy radio said.

Heavy fighting was reported north of the Rechitsa-Mozyr railway, where one Russian breakthrough was effected, according to the German overseas agency.

In the southwest Pacific, American airmen heavily raided the key Japanese base at Rabaul on New Britain, damaging nearby airbases and downing 16 would-be enemy interceptors. In addition, two vessels—one a Jap destroyer—and 15 barges were set afire in other Allied air assaults.

Australian and American ground forces continued to hold the initiative both in New Britain and on New Guinea's Huon peninsula.

School for Fighting Mechanics Plane Repair Crews Do Job Under Fire

OPEN AIR "HANGAR"—With tree branches their only roof, these boys make quick warplane repairs.

HENRY C. NICHOLAS Central Press Correspondent LEESBURG, Fla.—Here in the jungles of central Florida there is something new in the annals of war. It is a school such as the world has never seen before, which is paying rich dividends in the winning of this war. Every other branch of the armed services, even the Marines, willingly agree that the graduates of this school are "tough babies."

With combat planes roaring overhead, with paratroopers and anti-aircraft gunnery being dropped from gliders, with skip-bombers diving down to within a few feet above the top of the trees and dropping explosive bombs at targets only a short distance away, here aircraft mechanics do their intricate repair jobs under conditions which would make the old peace-time mechanic wonder what ghastly nightmare he had blundered into.

Strange Work Shop

Their work shop is a small clearing hidden under moss-covered pines. The tools lay on canvas, and the trees are used as the hoists which hold aircraft engines aloft while the mechanics make major repairs. Small trailers carry the lathes and machine tools for making entire aircraft parts.

VANDALS RAID SCHOOL ROOMS AT YELLOWBUD

Ross county authorities are trying to find the vandals who broke into the Yellowbud school building Monday night, ransacked desks and left the building with rubble thrown all through it.

A rear window was jammed to gain entrance. Sheriff's deputies found a stolen car abandoned in the school yard. The car had been stolen in Lima.

Officers termed the break-in and the damage done the worst piece of vandalism they had ever encountered. Books, paper and other contents of desks were strewn around the rooms, potted plants were smashed on the floor, hands of the clock were twisted and an alarm clock and small valise were taken.

true especially since the current quota includes a record-breaking request for $174,000,000 in Series E, People's War Bonds. Ohioans fell $33,000,000 short of this amount in September E Bond purchases.

"But the job can and must be done," the drive chairman was told.

"If the 88 county organizations hit as hard as in the Third War Loan effort, and if Ohio citizens rally to the nation's appeal for everybody to back the attack, Ohio will take the 'beachhead' it has been assigned," the state chief declared.

"The job requires the same vast manpower as in September," the state chairman said. "We must have the same type and number of hard-working volunteers, all willing to give hour after hour of their time to serve their country. And now is the time for them to step up and prepare for action."

TAX CLAIMS OF FDR DRAW FIRE

million dollars instead of the six billions asked by the treasury. "I think taxes can be too high," said George. "I like the expression of Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee that while you can shear a sheep each year and get the wool you can only skin him once. I have said you can tax every year but you can confiscate but once."

"I think taxes can be too high to support an economy on which we must depend for maintenance of a real standard of living after the war. I don't think there ever will be a time when we will need employers of labor more than after this war."

Despite the administration demand for more taxes, it appeared unlikely that proposals would be made in the senate either for higher individual and corporation taxes or for a sales levy.

Sponsors of the present bill point out that it will increase the total federal tax burden to around forty-five billion dollars, which will pay half the cost of the war.

The senate measure rejects the house plan for a simplified individual income tax. Instead, the senate bill retains the victory tax at a three percent rate. It eliminates the credit now allowed for earned income. It also raises the corporation excess profits tax rate to 95 percent.

The house ways and means committee, meantime, announced that hearings will be held tomorrow and Friday on senate action in "freezing" social security payroll taxes for old-age annuities at the present rate of one percent each on employer and worker.

Unless congress adopts the "freeze," the pay-roll tax will be automatically doubled under existing law.

OPA SAYS TOO MANY RATION BOOKS LOST

Warning was given Wednesday by the Office of Price Administration that the increase in the number of ration books being lost or destroyed is too heavy, adding that lapse of from 60 to 90 days in obtaining replacements is likely.

The local board must be given absolute proof of loss or destruction before replacements can be approved. With the number of books missing on the increase, some persons may be forced to go without ration books for some time.

6. Soldier vote bill: the house seems ready to enact a senate bill, giving the states control of soldier balloting, after the President denounced such legislation and called for a federal ballot.

"Future Peace"

On the political side, many members thought of a fourth term candidacy when the President told of his Cairo and Tehran conferences, where he discussed "vital questions concerning the future peace." There was like reaction when he spoke about the last war when "such discussions did not even begin until the shooting had stopped." Many members felt this indicated the President would like to continue in office so his practical experience in meeting men like Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin could be used at the peace table.

However his message was received by the American people, it created little enthusiasm in congress. The senate heard it read by a clerk in utter silence—not one single round of applause. In the house, the Republicans sat quietly while Democrats rose in reluctant delay to give it a mild round of applause at its conclusion.

The significant comment came from Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D) Mont., and Rep. Joseph Martin, Jr., Republican leader of the house.

Wheeler said: "The message was a fourth term announcement... it was a clever political document intended to appeal to the prevailing mood of the people."

Martin said: "It was a message which kept constantly in mind that there is an election right ahead. It can also be interpreted quite easily as a fourth term bid."

Thousands Stand In Awe of Year's Puzzle, '44 Income Tax Report

Work on the "puzzle of the year," the 1944 income tax report, has started in Circleville and Pickaway county, but very little progress, if any, has been made by persons who must meet the March 15 deadline.

Even some of the city's lawyers who annually make out scores of tax reports are thinking about turning over their own income tax reports to other lawyers for preparation, throwing in the towel when they start working on figures the government would like to have.

ASHVILLE

This community was greatly shocked and grieved to learn of the untimely death of Lieutenant Richard A. Hedges in an airplane crash. It was the privilege of the writer to know Richard well since the Summer of 1930, when I worked on his father's farm. During those fourteen years, I have never heard an unkind word spoken about Richard—a tribute to a quiet, unassuming youth, who was a friend to all who knew him. The sincere sympathy of this community is extended to his family.

Miss Helen E. Bowers, former Ashville teacher, has been employed since September as staff assistant at the Newton Falls, Ohio, U. S. O. Club. Miss Bowers has been working with war production workers, as the Newton Falls Club is an industrial one. On February 1, Miss Bowers will assume her duties as assistant director of the new service-center at Cambridge, Ohio. This center provides recreational activities for patients and permanent personnel of the Fletcher Army hospital. Miss Bowers will have charge of both the junior and senior hostesses, and will plan activities for soldiers' wives and families. The new director at Cambridge is Earl Schreiber, former director of the U. S. O. Club at Camp Atterbury, Columbus, Indiana.

The Ashville Board of Public Affairs re-organized Monday evening, and elected C. A. Higley, president of the board. E. F. Schlegel will serve as vice-president. E. W. Seeds is the third member of the so-called waterworks board. M. C. Scott was re-employed as waterworks superintendent. Mrs. Louise Leatherwood, the village clerk, also serves as clerk of the board.

Officers of Palmetto Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will be installed Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m.

Dan McClain, local manager of the Gas Company, gave instruction Tuesday to the committee appointed to vary village residents in case of a gas shortage. The town has been divided, and each member of the committee has been assigned a section for which he will be held responsible. A few more days of extremely cold weather will probably cause a gas shortage, which will require drastic curtailment of our use of natural gas. The committee is composed of the following members: George McDowell, Lee Nicholson, DuWayne Shook, Harry Fry, Richard Messick, James Woodworth, Jerry Eccard and Jack Irwin.

GLENN T. GRIMES CHOSEN HEAD OF COUNTY N. F. L. A.

Pickaway County National Farm Loan association conducted its annual meeting Tuesday at Pickaway Arms restaurant, hearing several interesting talks and electing directors to serve during the next three years.

Glenn T. Grimes of Perry township was elected to complete a two year term replacing H. C. Hines, Walnut township, retired, and Ralph E. May of Circleville township and Ira C. Fisher of Walnut township were re-elected to serve three year terms.

V. R. Wertz, economist of Ohio State university, discussed the 1944 agricultural outlook, and short talks were made by representatives from each of the agricultural cooperatives, Grange, Farm Bureau, extension service and Farm Security administration. Despite the fact that many farmers have been able to pay off their loans obtained through the association, the organization reports that outstanding loans in the county still amount to $750,000.

Music for the program included several vocal and violin selections by Miss Metta May Hickman, accompanied by Miss Koch, and piano music by Miss Charlene Brobst, Miss Barbara Brobst and Orley Bosworth. Miss Hickman's vocal selections included "Smilin' Thru," "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There" and "My Hero."

WARDENS TAKE TO AIR
BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—Game wardens who had been trying to keep the Laguna Madre under control for years were really up in the air over the latest method. The Lagunas, miles of coast line and shallow water, is divided from the Gulf of Mexico by low-lying Padre Island, but the Laguna is too shallow for patrol boats, and could not be patrolled efficiently from the ground. So game wardens solved the problem by taking to the air in PBY and PBM patrol boats and a Navy Blimp.

RAGS ARE RICHES—TODAY

OUTWARD BOUND—Here old clothes are being baled ready for shipment to countries which have already been liberated by the Allies.

HE HELPS—An "old clothes man" brings in his day's purchases.

worn, with good linings, will bring $1.50 to $2 in Near East, Syria, Palestine, Iraq, North Africa and Egypt. Those with wounded pockets that have been operated on, and ragged sleeves bring 50 to 75c. Those with ripped or mutilated collars or other rips that have been repaired bring less than 25c.

Only several pennies worth of profit is made on each item sold. The biggest export house on Elizabeth street has a yearly business of well over $2,000,000. It operates in a six-story building and has two smaller warehouses. It employs 200 persons, whose work mostly is to repair the garments that come in. The business of 10 smaller firms is almost $1,000,000 a year.

Domestic Market Good
As the wartime prosperity reaches even "the other side of the railroad tracks," the home demand for used clothes is rising. There are around 3,000 used clothes stores in the United States—about 100 being in New York. For the stores, many of the larger wholesalers issue illustrated catalogs.

Most of the old clothes are sold in the southern states. And the best source of supply are the northeastern states.

American laborers and factory employees buy "old pants" to work in, so they can save their better clothes. Impoverished folk in the warmer areas of the south, where people do not wear coats, are able to buy the pants for a great deal less than they would have to pay for new ones. Even if they have had to be much repaired the trousers bring $2 or $3 a pair.

The smartest domestic market of old clothes street is when coats, pants and vests, all matching, are bought and sold. Cash clothes peddlers ring doorbells and shout their wares through the streets of the large cities. As a rule they will pay around $5 for a good suit, and collect a 60 per cent profit on it. At 2 p. m. each day the New York hawkers pour out of the subways with the loosely-wrapped bundles of clothes on their backs and gather on Elizabeth street. There they bargain with the jobbers for their "finds."

Pawnbrokers' unredeemed pledges are another source of "quality suits." The new wearers generally pay around $10 to $12 for the suits.

About 10,000,000 garments find their way each year to Elizabeth street.

The old clothes houses on Elizabeth street also get part of their supply from rejects and damaged goods from manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

The coats for shipping abroad are sorted into three grades. The dinner jacket or tail coat. So thousands of bales of used clothing have been sent abroad to the distant port of Matadi.

Elizabeth street's export business is largely to Africa, India and China, when exports to such countries are possible. They grade export material in five different grades. The lower grades go to countries like India and a few others where labor is very cheap and where they cannot pay anything but the lowest price.

Every day, tons of old clothes pour into Elizabeth street from all over the country. They are bought by the junker, sorted by the jobber, and often sent by carload lots to Elizabeth street. Anything to wear is bundled and sold by the pound to jobbers.

The old clothes houses on Elizabeth street also get part of their supply from rejects and damaged goods from manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

HEDGES FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD MONDAY

Partial arrangements for funeral services for Lieutenant Richard A. Hedges, 25, who was killed last Saturday night near Pocatello, Idaho, have been made. More details will be completed, after Mrs. Hedges, the former Ruth Dunlap, arrives home.

The body will reach Circleville at 10:15 p. m., Circleville time, Friday and will be taken to the Hedges home, 478 North Court street. While Lieutenant Hedges was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hedges of South Bloomfield, he and his wife had lived with Mrs. Hedges' father, Floyd Dunlap, in Circleville after their marriage.

The body will be removed Monday morning to the First Methodist church where services will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen.

It is presumed that military services will be conducted. Mrs. Hedges is accompanying the body to Circleville. A military escort from Pocatello is also with the body.

Lieutenant Hedges, graduate of Ashville high school in the class of 1936, was killed with four other members of his B-24 bomber crew in a crash into the desert 40 miles from Pocatello. Base authorities are still searching for two members of the crew who are missing.

TOBACCO REGULATION

Pickaway county A. A. said Wednesday that under government regulations no burley tobacco allotments for 1944 will be established on any farm on which burley tobacco was not planted in one or more of the years 1939-43 inclusive unless an application for an allotment is made to the A. A. office by February 1. An allotment will not be approved for the new 1944 burley tobacco farm unless the person growing tobacco has had experience growing tobacco in the last five years and is living on the farm and is largely dependent on the farm for his livelihood.

VICTORY IN '44?

RICHARD McALISTER, North Court street: "The European war may be over by March and certainly by April. Our supply lines across the Atlantic appear safer than ever before, the thousands of men ready in England and the thousands more ready on this side of the water are mighty enough to defeat Hitler. However, I differ from many persons in that I believe the death blow will strike

Hitler from the Balkans. Our English channel invasion will be a success, and Hitler will throw so many men into defense of the Western Front that his softer "under belly" in the Balkans will be vulnerable. I look for the Russians to keep going, the Channel invasion to start any time now, and a mighty thrust through the Balkans is certain to come. That will spell defeat for Nazism."

Star Grange Installs New Official Family

80 Present At Ceremony In School

Sixty grangers and twenty juveniles were present Tuesday at the meeting of Star grange in Monroe school auditorium and witnessed the fine installation work of Mrs. Ottis Leist and her team of officers. Inducted were C. M. Reid, worthy master; David Stoer, overseer; Mrs. Ethel Davis, lecturer; Richard Phillips, steward; Billy Truit, assistant steward; the Rev. E. E. Ewing, chaplain; C. E. Dick, secretary; Earl Fisher, treasurer; Adrian Liston, gatekeeper; Ruth Long, Ceres; Mary Katherine Dick, Pomona; Ruby Clark, Flora; Pauline Conley, lady assistant steward.

During the business hour, Mr. Reid appointed four standing committees for the coming year. Mrs. Pearl Grimsley, Mrs. Sadie Wills and Lawrence Phillips will serve as members of the finance committee; Clyde Neff, C. D. Hosler, Harry Bailey, Mrs. Herman Porter, Pauline Conley and Mrs. William Snyder, the relief committee; Martha Anderson, chairman, Ellen Dennis and Marie Dick, the home economics committee; Mrs. Charles Hosler, Miss Laura Long and Mrs. Hoadley Warner, the floral committee.

A covered dish supper was served during the closing social hour.

Benevolent Association

Mrs. Henry S. Lewis and Mrs. C. G. Stewart were named members of a nominating committee to present a slate of officers for the Circleville Benevolent association at the meeting of the organization Tuesday in the city cottage. Miss Florence Dunton was in the chair for the business hour and asked the committee to report at the annual meeting in February.

Miss Clara Southward read her report for December, 1943, stating that as case worker she had made 32 visits in the homes of clients and 31 visits in their behalf. There were 58 office interviews with applicants and 30 interviews with consultatives. Donations of used clothing and various miscellaneous articles came to the cottage from 17 individuals, St. Philip's Guild and the Child Conservation league and helped to supply needs in 49 families. Some new clothing and household supplies were purchased. Supplies issued from the cottage included 31 pairs of shoes, 118 garments and 93 miscellaneous articles, including some bedding. The games and toys from the Luther league and an assortment of dolls and Teddy bears from an unknown donor helped to add Christmas cheer to children in many homes.

A nice lot of sandwiches and potato chips came to the cottage the day before Christmas, and were given to five families, each expressing thanks for the food. Senior Girl Reserves, Girl Scouts Troop 1 and Troop 4 and one kind-hearted gentleman wanting to help needy families have a good Christmas dinner were given names and addresses of five families.

On account of rationing, it was not possible for the association to distribute baskets of food for Christmas as has been done every season for more than 25 years. Forty families were on the list in 1942, the 1943 list not being so great. A few needed to be remembered and sickness added several to the group needing help. The best that could be done by the association was to send Christmas Greeting cards and orders for groceries and let the recipient supply the necessary ration points for the food selected. Fifteen families were thus remembered.

BEAU JACK'S BOSS TOLD TO KEEP VIEWS QUIET

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Chick Wergeles, manager of Lightweight Beau Jack, had a warning today from the New York Boxing commission that any further beefs concerning referees must be delivered to the commission.

Wergeles loudly criticized Referee Eddie Joseph's scoring of the recent Madison Square Garden non-title bout between the Beau and Lulu Costantino. The judges had awarded the decision to Beau Jack but Joseph voted eight rounds of the 10-round go to Costantino.

NINE NEW NAMES ON MAJOR LOOP ALL-STAR CREW

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12—Nine newcomers were on the 1943 all-star baseball team today, the largest group of newcomers in the history of annual selections made by the Baseball Writers' Association of America for the Sporting News.

The line-up held over only Morton Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals from the 1942 aggregation. Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox, an all-star man in 1936 and 1940, was back again for the third time.

The largest number of votes, 217 of the 224 cast, went to Stan Musial of the Cards. Spurgeon Chandler of the champion New York Yankees was runner-up with 215 votes.

TIGER CAGERS TO PLAY LIONS

Red And Black Favored To Cop SCO Victory Over Washington C. H.

The record of the Red and Black is better than that of the Blue Lions, but despite that a hot contest is expected.

BEAN TOWN MAY NOT SEE PROS PLAY IN 1944

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The possibility of the city of Boston getting pro football in 1944 appeared definitely out today as the National league opened its two-day Winter meeting in Chicago.

The club owners were reported in tacit agreement that the present is not the time for expansion of the circuit beyond its present 10 members.

Radio Impressario Ted Collins has a franchise for a team in Boston, but it is up to the rest of the league to determine when he can start operating, according to other franchise holders.

However, it was understood that Collins was prepared to insist that Boston be permitted to field a team this Fall, if he can get the necessary personnel in the form of players and coaches.

He is reported already to have signed a five-year contract for use of Fenway park, home of the Red Sox baseball club.

Representing Collins at the meeting was William Shea, an attorney, who faced a certain fight if he attempted to claim the right of the Beantown to enter the pro grid wars this Fall.

Meanwhile, Art Rooney, co-owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, was reported ready to combine his team with another club again for the 1944 season. The Steelers merged with the Philadelphia Eagles for the 1943 campaign.

Rooney was reported as saying he was willing to pair with the Cleveland Rams, who did not operate last season, or the Chicago Cardinals for the 1944 season.

ODELL DESIGNATED AS GRID PLAYER OF YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12—Bob Odell, University of Pennsylvania's all-American back, added another honor to his long list today—the Maxwell memorial trophy as the outstanding football player of 1943.

The presentation was made by the Maxwell Memorial Club at the Hotel Warwick before 350 persons, including Odell's coach, George Munger.

Odell was named all-American by three press services and Collier's magazine.

East-West Game Only One With Excuse For Existence, Says Writer

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—As a sort of follow up to a recent column on the same subject, it seems to me that there is only one post-season football game played in non-war years which justifies its existence. This is the annual East-West all-star encounter at San Francisco for the benefit of the Shriners' crippled children fund. It is also the only game in which the players should participate without compensation. That is a sore point. We will go farther into it in a moment.

At hand are two letters, one from the promoters of the East-West game and the other from a mid-west sports editor who takes exception to our recent stand on post-season games generally.

A break-down of receipts and expenditures for the East-West game shows that the crippled children's fund will get approximately 62 percent of the gross receipts, or about $77,016.

That justifies the East-West game as an annual promotion that does a good deed for a lot of needy kids. Nothing should ever happen to this game, nothing should interfere with keeping a lasting place on the sports calendar. If anything, everything possible should be done to make it ever bigger and better.

Getting round to the other bowl games—or, more specifically, the post-season games of all kinds—they are in too many instances lary in the South, but I can put a finger on a considerable number of institutions which conduct athletics successfully on a basis of strict amateurism. One of these is the University of Nebraska. I am nothing more than publicity schemes, designed to publicize some point and in some instances to raise money for no particular reason.

That's all right, too. But they are strictly commercial, except in scattered instances of late when some of the funds are diverted into the war effort. No war, no funds, except to the backers thereof. Or, in any case, if the funds are sent into charity channels they still are publicity schemes.

That brings us around to the second aforementioned letter, the same being from Mr. C. C. Sherman, sports editor of the Lincoln, Neb., star, which letter is a reply to the previous column. He says in part:

"X X X the moment collegiate athletic directors propose to compensate football players (for playing in the post-season games) the institutional heads (college presidents and chancellors) would wipe football from the slate."

"It is ever so true that the evils of proselytizing and subsidization are more or less general, particularly in position to verify this statement."

Mr. Cy Sherman insists that football players shouldn't be paid for participating in the post-season bowls. He goes on to explain that Nebraska has an athletic plant that cost between two and a half and three million dollars built from football profits for the use of the student body and that therefore in this sense football profits are justified for the good of the whole.

Should Pay
 Nobody will argue about that. But they still should pay football players for participating in the promotions known as bowl games. If necessary restrict these games to seniors who are going out into the world in most cases in need of a few bucks.

NOW THERE ARE TWO SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—This is the story of Rabaul, Gasmata, and the late mourned Soputa, all English bulldogs. They were triplets; now they are twins. When Soputa died recently he created a stir, which was felt as far away as Washington, D. C. The dogs are mascots of a famous light bombardment unit. Soputa, lost in a plane crash, had been entered on the manifest as General Soputa. Somehow, the manifest, or the contents thereof, reached Washington. Considerable explaining had to be done.

DUKE SCORES ACE
NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 12—The Duke of Windsor, governor-general of the Bahamas, could boast a record today much desired by most golfers. The Duke made a hole in one on the 18th green at the Bahamas Country club yesterday. It was his third "ace," since he performed the same feat previously in England and in Brazil.

NAVY TO CARRY ON GRID PLANS, KNOX DECLARES

Secretary Speaks At Confab. Of Touchdown Club; Many Awards Are Made

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Secretary of the Navy Knox today favors continuation of football and other outdoor sports during the war.

Knox wholeheartedly endorsed sports during wartime in addressing the annual dinner of the Touchdown Club of Washington during which trophies were awarded to the nation's outstanding professional, college and high school football stars.

The navy secretary said he usually agrees with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, but on wartime football he had differed.

"The navy," Knox said, "took the position that football should be continued, because we believe that the spirit that makes good football players makes good soldiers and sailors."

"We in the navy believe in football and other sports that require physical contact with opponents. We are in a war in which one kills or gets killed. I don't know any thing that prepares men better for that kind of war, which we have especially in the Pacific, than what we get out of football."

Also present among the 1,000 at the dinner were Admiral William F. Halsey, Allied commander in the South Pacific, Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, new commandant of the Marine corps, and other high ranking army and navy officers.

Bertelli Outstanding

Vandegrift presented Angelo Bertelli, the great Notre Dame quarterback who is now in the marines, the club's Walter Camp memorial trophy for being the outstanding all-American football player in 1943.

Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell awarded the Knute Rockne memorial trophy to Casimir Myslinski, army center, for being the outstanding all-American lineman.

Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins was awarded the club's trophy as the outstanding football player in professional ranks. Arthur J. Bergman, coach of the Redskins, received the trophy from Admiral Halsey on behalf of Baugh, who was reported unable to attend because a manpower shortage required he attend his cattle ranch in Texas.

Halsey also presented the Robert Smith trophy to Ensign Dick Todd, of the Iowa Seahawks, who formerly played with the Redskins.

The club extended its awards to baseball, and Ossie Bluege, manager of the Washington Senators received a special token as the outstanding pilot of the year.

Robert Simmons, club president, officially gave the organization support to a drive to place the name of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

When the "What's New?" full-hour program moves to New York on Saturday, Leonard Warren, Metropolitan Opera Company baritone and recording artist; Celeste Holm, comedienne of the Broadway smash musical, "Oklahoma"; Jack Douglas, this season's comedy find; Jim Ameche; and Lou Brink, conductor of the orchestra and chorus will all be featured regularly over the Blue network at 6 p. m.
Special guests on the big New York premiere will be Metropolitan Opera soprano and recording artist, Helen Traubel, and Betty Smith, author of the best-selling novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn". Jerry Lester, Benny Baker and Betty Garrett will enact a scene from their new musical comedy, "Jackpot." The musical is scheduled to open on Broadway, January 13th. Admiral Sir Percy Noble, R.N. and Rear Admiral Francis S. Low, USN, will be featured in an outstanding story of news significance, "Hands Across the Flattops."

Traubel, the season of 1943-44 marks a new high in her already successful career. In addition to her concert and Metropolitan Opera performances, Miss Traubel is a popular entertainer with the men and women in the armed services.

MURPHY AND FRAZEE
George Murphy, popular song and dance man of the screen, and Jane Frazee, a rising young starlet, will be Bing Crosby's guests on the Music Hall Thursday evening at 8 over WLW.
"Georgious Georges" as he is called by Bing Crosby for his many screen roles in which he is surrounded by beautiful girls, is a frequent visitor to Kraft Music Hall. On his last visit Murphy and Bing re-enacted a scene between two youngsters who were earning big salaries at a defense plant.

HERO OF TARAWA
George Holloway, twenty-two-year-old Navy Pharmacist Mate, who served under fire with the Marine invasion of Tarawa, will be the serviceman hero on the Monty Woolley show Wednesday at 7 p. m. over the Columbia network. As previously announced, the guest star of the evening will be "Slapsie Maxie" Rosenbloom.
Although Pharmacist Mate Holloway belongs to the U. S. Navy he is attached to the Marines and wears their uniform due to the fact the Marines have no medical corps of their own. As a "battalion aid man" Holloway landed with the second wave of fighting Marines who swept over the Tarawa beach under heavy enemy fire. Even though wounded in the left arm by a Jap sniper, the Navy Pharmacist Mate continued to serve throughout the attack. Holloway was cited for heroism and is now convalescing at a San Diego Naval hospital.
The serviceman hero hails from Deridder, Louisiana. Until his enlistment in the Navy two years ago, he studied "pre-med" at the University of Southwestern Louisiana and planned to be a dentist.
Sammy Kaye and his boys in the orchestra will provide the musical interludes on the half hour show. Vocal renditions will be handled by Sammy's featured singers Nancy Norman, Sally Stuart, Billy Williams, Arthur Wright and the Kaye Choir.
Kay Kyser's versatility as a bandleader was brought out in Radio Daily's national poll of radio editors queried on their other favorites. Half of them voted Kay and his group well up among the Top Ten swing bands; the other half cast him equally as high in the "sweet" class!

Jaycees To Select Outstanding Local Young Man for 1944.

RECORD TO BE KEPT OF ALL UNDERTAKINGS

Award To Go To Citizen Between Ages Of 21 And 36

AIRIED AT DINNER MEET

Inter-Club Assembly Set With Erwin Johnson As Speaker

Another excellent project, selection of the outstanding young man in Circleville during 1944, is being conducted by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce. The project is in line with a national Jaycee undertaking, a distinguished service award to be made to the person between ages of 21 and 36 inclusive selected by the Jaycee committee.

Judson Lanman, president of the Junior Chamber, appointed John Moore, Maxwell Lee and Robert Elsea as a committee to keep records of work done in the community and for the community during the year. This committee will recommend the ultimate recipient of the distinguished service honor.

Announcement of this program highlighted a dinner meeting conducted Tuesday evening in the Betz restaurant.

Inter-Club Meet

Jaycees also announced that they would serve as hosts February 8 at an inter-club meeting to be conducted in Hanley's tearoom, with Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and senior Chamber of Commerce to be invited. Sheldon Mader is in charge of the program and arrangements, while Boyd Stout has been designated to invite the guests to the dinner session.

Erwin Johnson, the "Early Worm" of the radio station WBNB, Columbus, will be the principal speaker. Johnson, who appeared at a Jaycee ladies' night meeting some months ago, made such a good impression that he is being returned for a stag meeting. His radio program is a popular one in Circleville.

Officers Speak

Jaycee members heard brief talks by two state Jaycee officials, Andy Vagniers, state vice-president, and Ron Ansley, state public relations director, both of Columbus. Both men spoke briefly, urging the Jaycees to make reports of their many activities so they could receive proper recognition, and they also urged the local unit to be represented at all state board sessions. The club was praised for its many activities.

A letter was read from George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, thanking Jaycees for the interest in the county basketball tournament. The Junior Chamber had urged that the tournament be held this year in the C.A.C. gymnasium, but county school men decided that the gym needs repairs and remodeling. The tourney will be held in Jackson township school building, scene of the competition last year.

Backs Park Project

A letter was also read from W. E. Wallace, West Main street, in which he promised his support for the Jaycee move to develop the Ted Lewis Recreation Center. Mr. Wallace was a member of the committee which raised money to buy land for the park.

Jaycees were invited to attend a state meeting March 19 and 20 in Columbus to hear an address by Bruce Palmer, national president, who is soon to be inducted into the army.

The organization was urged also to listen to a series of broadcasts starting Friday, January 14, over Mutual stations and WHKC, Columbus, during which the distinguished service award will be publicized. The broadcast will be conducted 26 weeks. The award will be presented this week to Major Joe Foss, marine air corps ace, who has downed at least 26 Japanese planes in Pacific theatre fighting.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

Democrats of the 11th, 6th and 7th congressional districts are expected to gather Wednesday evening in Washington C. H. for a campaign rally. Whether any leaders of the party from Pickaway county will be present has not yet been decided.

Here's Why Road to Rome Is So Tough

EIGHTH'S C. O.—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, hero of El Alamein.

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rome by New Year's Day!

Perhaps a question mark would be more fitting.

In either case, the flat declaration expresses hope.

Favoring this possibility is the fact that in certain respects the going will prove easier for the Anglo-American forces north of the Garigliano river.

Russia has never indicated publicly she considers our efforts in Italy to represent a second front. Evidence is piling up, however, demonstrating the tremendous value of this invasion both to the Russians and the British American forces which may hit the continent at other points.

You've got to look closely at Italy to get the picture. Unlike the Free French, the Italian army has provided a total of virtually no aid to the invaders. Since the American landing at Salerno, Sept. 9, the Americans have lost, in killed, wounded and missing, something more than 10,800 men. British casualties likewise have been relatively heavy.

At the moment, American Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, and British Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, have their forces flung along the Garigliano, north of Montaquila (midway between the Tyrrhenian sea and the Adriatic) and on to the Adriatic near Ortona.

Three Tough Lines

This means our forces already have pierced the Nazi's so-called winter line, first of three we must breach with heavy fighting before we reach France and Germany.

Piercing this defense line is not so simple as the statement suggests, for the Germans occupy mountain positions difficult to assault, to say nothing of taking. It is not strictly speaking a "winter line," the phrase having arisen from German orders to their troops to hold here for two months.

Whether the Allies will reach Rome by New Year's Day depends upon many factors, not all of which can be made public. German resistance may be taken as factor number one. Then there are the problems of supply and weather.

The Germans get their supplies from bases in Germany, perhaps 500 miles north of the fighting line. Ours must reach our troops directly and indirectly from England and the United States. All of them reach southern Italy via the sea, with very limited and specialized quantities arriving by air.

We land at Taranto, Bari, Naples—all badly smashed by German demolition squads or our own bombers.

Yet, as our bombers range from Italian fields, smashing the Nazis both in their prepared positions and along their lines of supply, General Clark's troops have pinned down the Germans along the Garigliano, giving General Montgomery an opportunity to swing north and west from the Adriatic side of the boot in a wide, enveloping movement.

It means the toughest sort of fighting. Several rivers must be crossed. The Nazis have created formidable defenses in the hills. Quick-moving mobile artillery backing up infantry defends every height. Tanks lay in waiting behind every natural passageway.

The enemy is estimated to have some 50 divisions in Italy, 10 of these facing the Allies, with 40 patrolling the coast lines, resting in reserve and policing industrial areas.

About the quality of these troops, we know comparatively little. Symptomatic of the heavy bludgeoning the Reich has taken, on the Russian front and from the air, three divisions recently were reported as having moved into northern Italy from France.

One of these consisted of two regiments only, and brought mainly undersized mortars and 37-mm antitank guns, and thus was equipped with both inadequate firepower and obsolete weapons.

On the whole, however, the German ground forces are well equipped, and continue to prove a formidable fighting machine.

What lies ahead for the Allies in Italy?

We must bridge several rain-swollen rivers, especially the Liri, Pescara and Volturno. We must complete the crossing of the Sangro in face of devastating fire.

We must crack the strong positions between Cassino and Mignano, on the road to Rome.

We can take or bypass Rome, and push on hundreds of miles before reaching what often has been described as Europe's "inner fortress."

We must have Rome. Reasons are political and psychological as well as strategic. Failure to capture Rome amounts to a confession of failure. Having taken the Eternal City, our fighting has just begun.

The Germans obviously fear

more amphibious landings will be attempted, perhaps from both the Tyrrhenian and Adriatic.

They have reportedly been engaged for some time in demolition at several ports.

For some eight months now they have been spreading a network of defensive positions across the peninsula. Many thousands of laborers have been toiling on this work, creating defenses from La Spezia, the naval base, to Rimini, on the other shore of the boot.

Could the enemy hold this line, he would be able to hold intact (until our bombers get in their licks) the industrial triangle whose corners touch Genoa, Turin and Milan. Quite aside from the production he would retain, this territory also protects the Reich by holding the Allies back from the Alps.

Though ground fighting continues far to the south, our air forces give the Germans no rest. Heavy bombers protected by fighters can reach Verona, Milan, Turin with ease. One of the fiercest air battles yet reported from Italy occurred recently as our four-engine giants smashed at the railway yards in Rimini, less than an hour's flying from northernmost Italy.

Colossal Blow Impending

The mouthings of Hitler and Mussolini brought them no permanent victories. General Clark commander of the American Fifth Army, says little. But his companion, General Montgomery, commanding the British Eighth, recently declared the Allies' readiness to deliver a colossal blow.

That blow seems in the making. We outfought the Germans in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns to date; and the Germans now are "in the very condition in which we want them."

Fall of Rome would represent completion of an important stage of our attack on Europe. If the Fifth and Eighth reach Rome by Jan. 1, Clark and Montgomery will have exceeded their expectations. If we haven't entered Rome when the year ends, we can be assured Tommies and Yanks together are charging at the outer bastions of an unhappy capital.

altitude bombing. Coming in low, the planes avoid detection by the enemy, whereas the high-altitude planes are caught both by instruments and vision.

The tree-top flying requires greater pilot skill, also the use of delayed-action bombs so that the planes can get away from the target before it blows up under the plane.

This is the kind of work that was done in the famous battle of the Bismarck Sea, in which every Jap ship was destroyed. It was also how the Nazis sneaked up on Bori and wreaked havoc with Allied shipping.

MORRISON'S MAIL

Probably never before in history has a member of Congress so flagrantly used the free Congressional frank as Representative Jimmy Morrison in his current campaign for Governor of Louisiana. The marathon-lunged, midget "Huey Long" believes in sparing no expense in his campaign—as long as the Federal taxpayers are footing the bill.

At the last count, approximately a million pieces of campaign literature—folded, addressed and mailed entirely at the taxpayers' expense—had been sent out by Morrison, urging Louisianans to vote for him in the January primary. The mailing charge alone would amount to about $30,000 if Morrison had to pay it out of his own pocket.

However, Morrison hasn't contented himself with this gratuity. He has also introduced some brand new wrinkles that should open the eyes of his older, though less ingenious colleagues.

A great believer in the "personal touch," Jimmy has four girl employees of the House majority room addressing by hand the envelopes for his campaign ballyhoo. It would be quicker and far less expensive to use an addressograph, but Morrison wants the Louisiana voters to believe that they are getting something special. He can well afford to do this—it's nothing out of his pocket.

For a while, one girl was given the job of imitating Morrison's signature on campaign letters sent to Louisiana voters, so that the voters would think he was writing to each of them individually.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Budget Bureau several times has offered Cordell Hull all the money he needs for the State Department if he will only clean house and get in some good men. Diplomats whisper that, if Sumner Welles had been in the State Department, we wouldn't have been caught napping in Bolivia. . . . Certain A. F. L. labor leaders are leaning more and more toward Willie since the General Marshall blast. . . . When the President called off his press conference following the turmoil over General Marshall's labor attack, Indiana scribe Dan Kidney remarked: "Roosevelt's cold has gone to his feet." . . . A relative of the Bush brewery family, Gert Von Gontard, was arrested by the FBI as a draft evader and Nazi sympathizer. It sets off the contrast between him and grand old man Adolphus Bush, head of the family, a bitter anti-Nazi and a heavy contributor to the anti-isolationist campaign. . . . Vice President Wallace's significant Western speaking itinerary will be Los Angeles, Feb. 4; San Francisco, Feb. 7; a visit but no speech in Portland, Feb. 8; Seattle, Feb. 9; Milwaukee, Feb. 11; Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12. . . . Harold Ickes and Henry Wallace, who didn't love each other too much when Wallace was Secretary of Agriculture, have made up. Jesse Jones (not love for him) brought them together. . . . The A. F. L. executive committee will finally vote John L. Lewis's mine workers into the A. F. L. at this month's meeting in Florida.

BROTHERS GET JAIL SENTENCE FOR TIRE THEFT

Howard and Clifford French, New Holland district brothers, were sent to Fayette county jail Tuesday under fines of $100 and costs assessed by Justice George Worrell for theft of an automobile tire from a filling station in Washington C. H. last October.

But jail to the French brothers will be nothing new.

They were given hearings in Fayette county after being released by Sheriff Charles Radcliff following a long stay in the Pickaway county jail. The brothers served $100 and costs and 30 days each for theft of 50 pounds of sugar from a truck parked in New Holland. The search for the sugar unearthed the stolen tire.
